Official Report of Rescue of 38 Officers and Men of Submarine S-5

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—A sailor's white undershirt, pushed through a hole drilled in the hull of the sunken submarine S-5, led to the rescue of the 38 officers and men aboard, it was revealed today in an official report of the accident.

After hours beneath the ocean with the oxygen exhausted, the crew learned that the stern of their ship was above water. This supplied a ray of hope, and working as they never worked before, they gouged a small hole through the iron hull. To do this, they climbed up the side of the ship standing at an angle of about 60 degrees.

Through this hole they thrust a

WATCH FOR EX-CONVICTS BELOW "DEAD LINE"

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—If any of 20,000 men who have had prison records at Sing Sing within the last 25 years appear in New York's financial district below the famous police "dead line" their actions are likely to be scrutinized by two of their old prison attendants, whose retirement from the institution was announced today.

Martin J. Deeley and Frederick Dorner, the two former attendants who are said to be able to "spot" any face among the 20,000, have been employed by two financial houses to be on the lookout for any of their old prison acquaintances.

BIKES INJURED

A Harley-Davidson motorcycle was badly damaged and a man was slightly injured this afternoon when the machine crashed into the curbstone on the corner of Merrimack and Fawcett streets. The machine bore the Massachusetts registration 11,453, but the owner's name could not be learned.
Witnesses of the accident say the driver of the cycle in order to avoid striking an automobile, which was rounding the corner on its left side, turned his wheel against the sidewalk.
The driver was thrown from his seat and as far as could be learned sustained injuries to his legs and face.
The fork of the motorcycle was broken, while the sidecar was badly smashed.
The machine was taken to the garage of the Bernhardt & Miller Automobile Co. in Moody street.

The crater on the moon are believed in large part to be due to the fall of meteors.

BROOKLYN CAR BARN BURNED

200 Sleeping Strike-Breakers
Imperilled By Incendiary
Fire

Blaze Caused $10,000 Loss
—Conflicting Reports on Strike Situation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Conflicting claims regarding Brooklyn's Transit depot were made today by officials of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. and its striking employees who quit work last Sunday to enforce demands for a 50 per cent wage increase and recognition of the closed shop.

While Reverend Lindley M. Garrison declared more than 300 men had resumed work, Louis M. Fridiger, attorney for the union, claimed the strikers' forces were virtually intact.

Meanwhile traffic on the subway, elevated and surface lines continue to improve.

Two hundred sleeping strike breakers in the Ridgewood depot of the B.R.T. were imperilled early today by fire of supposedly incendiary origin which entailed a loss of $10,000.

Two trolleys were destroyed and three others badly damaged. The strike breakers who were awakened soon after the fire was discovered assisted in saving many cars.

Many surface cars were operated today without the heavy wire netting which had been placed on some of them for protection of crews.

Six additional surface lines, making a total of 27, were in use. Officials announced that 200 more strikers had returned to work.

W. D. Mahon, international president of the union, is expected here from Detroit Monday.

SHOWS PART WOMEN WILL TAKE IN PRIMARY

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The part which women will take in the state primaries of next Tuesday, the first Massachusetts election in which they have had a vote, was indicated today by a census of registration figures made by the Associated Press. These figures, which represent the registration in the 35 cities of the state, show that out of an aggregate of $11,511 registered voters, 130,370 are women.

If this proportion is maintained among the towns of the state, many of which wer still holding registration today, one woman will go to the polls for every three or four men.

RED AGENTS BUSY IN ANATOLIA

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 2.—(By Associated Press.)—Large numbers of Turkish Bolshevik agents have begun an intensive campaign of propaganda in Anatolia under the control of leaders supporting the Turkish nationalist government. They are lecturing in the streets and distributing pamphlets defining the 23 principles of Bolshevism, one of which is that peasants should own the land.

A club has been organized at Trebizond, the male members being given badges bearing the hammer and anvil, while the women members are wearing red ribbons pinned to their vests.
The police in this city are arresting dozens of agents who are supplied with pamphlets and money.

NEW KIND OF RENT PROTECTOR

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—Police here today were on the lookout for a new kind of rent protector—the kind who accepts deposits but has nothing to rent. Scores of anxious would-be tenants complained to authorities that they had made deposits, ranging from $10 to $20 to a man who strutted around in an uncompleted apartment building posing as the landlord.

CUDDY CONFERS WITH COL. FOOTE

Question of Holding Boxing Bouts Labor Day Still in Suspense

Lawrence City Council Takes Action to Permit Bouts
There on Labor Day

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The question whether professional boxing would be allowed in this state on Labor day was in suspense today.

A ban was apparently put on such matches, when it was announced that a proposal to have temporary licenses issued for these bouts had been set aside by a ruling of the attorney general, Col. Arthur F. Foote, who as commissioner of public safety is ex-officio chairman of the boxing commission, the other members of which have not yet been appointed, said he was without authority to act until the other members were named, and Gov.
Coolidge was considering the appointment of the two additional commissioners this afternoon.

Col. Foote had a conference with John E. Cuddy of Lawrence, manager of the proposed bout between Frankie Callahan and Lew Teller, and at Cuddy's suggestion submitted to Attorney General Allen the question whether as chairman he could issue a temporary permit. The adverse ruling of the attorney general settled the point.

LAWRENCE COUNCIL ACTS

LAWRENCE, Sept. 4.—The city council in special session today voted to accept the boxing act, which would permit boxing bouts to be held here under the provisions of the new law. It was thought here that this action might remove one technicality in the way of holding bouts scheduled here for Labor Day.

MRS. MACSWINEY SENDS CABLE TO PRES. WILSON

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Terence MacSwiney has cabled President Wilson an appeal in behalf of her husband, the lord mayor of Cork, who is in a critical condition in prison, as a result of a hunger strike which began August 12.

Mrs. MacSwiney asks President Wilson to use his influence with the English government to prevent the perpetration of an outrage on civilization.

Mayor MacSwiney was apparently weaker this morning, and the prison doctors expressed great alarm. They advised his relatives that nobody should converse with him today.

The lord mayor spent a bad night, and this morning was pale and suffering from complete exhaustion. He was able to speak only in gasps.
His brow was heavily wrinkled and his face was considerably more shrunken. He was still conscious, however.

Sean MacSwiney, his brother, remained with him during the night, and other members of the family maintained a constant watch today.

LOWELL POLICEMAN AT HAMPTON BEACH

Inspector John A. Walsh of the local police department will act as a special officer at Hampton beach during the carnival week from September 5 to 10. The chief of police of Hampton requested Supt. Redmond Welch to loan Mr. Walsh for carnival week and the superintendent acquiesced. The inspector has been vacationing at the beach for the past two weeks.

Extra precautions are being taken by the beach police for the coming week when Hampton will be crowded by thousands of visitors and possibly be infested with pickpockets. Inspector Walsh has been sworn in for duty under the New Hampshire laws.

ing before statewide contests will have been decided.

A variety of reasons are given for the quietude of campaigners and voters this year. One of them is, that

WORLD'S TITLE THEIR GOAL

THESE YOUNG SONS OF WEALTHY PLANTERS, BANKERS AND BUSINESS MEN OF THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS ARE BEING TRAINED TO CAPTURE THE POLO TITLE FOR AMERICA IN 1925

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 2.—Hawaii wants to lead the world in polo by having four island men on the American team that plays England for the title in 1925 even as Hawaii leads the world in swimming.

That is the goal which Coach Peter Hannon of the Hawaii Polo and Racing association had in mind when five years ago he took hold of 10 youngsters, not one of whom had then reached his teens and began training them. Recently those young riders and welders of the mallet trimmed an Army polo team here, and did it so thoroughly that their ability to make the American team in 1925 and bring the world championship in that line to Hawaii is unquestioned any longer.

In the past, polo players the world over have developed in hit-or-miss fashion. This is the first time in the history of the game that an effort has been made to develop a team from its youth. In 1925 all the youngsters in the team will be in the neighborhood of 20 years old, and with ten years of polo training behind them they should certainly be fit to trim the world. Even today they are declared the greatest boy polo team in the world. They are all sons of Hawaiian planters.

FALL ACTIVITIES

AT THE Y. W. C. A.

With the coming of September and the return of people to the city from their vacations, activities for the fall will very soon be underway at the local Y.W.C.A. Extensive programs are planned in the social and physical departments. The "Y" cafeteria will open on Tuesday, Sept. 7 under the direction of Miss Edith Spencer, a graduate of New York state college for teachers and experienced in institutional work in various organizations and also as the director of the cafeteria in the large Y.W.C.A. association in Watertown, N. Y. Miss Spencer will remain permanently in this city in connection with her new duties.

With the opening of the department of physical training will come the offering of classes in gymnastics and aesthetic dancing for all applicants and of other recreational opportunities, not heretofore presented. The director of the physical department will take charge on the 15th of this month at which time activities will practically begin.

This work will be in charge of Miss Charlotte Northrup, a graduate of Sargent's school in Boston of wide experience in her line of work, having been physical director in Germantown, Penn., and for three years the physical director in the "Y" in Albany, N. Y. Announcement of the complete schedule will be made upon her arrival.

Continued demand for rooms at the "Y" counter prompts another request by Miss Foster, in charge of the registration of rooms, that those who have vacant rooms in any section of the city should enter them upon her list. The Y.W.C.A. has a list of rooms, now pretty well occupied, to which young women in search of rooms at the John street building may be referred.

INCREASED EFFICIENCY

More Than 6,800,000 Men

Add to Production By Use of Automobiles

More than 6,800,000 men added 57 per cent. to their productive efficiency during the past year. More than 2,300,000 families have found it possible to live in the suburbs or otherwise improve their home surroundings. A working force equivalent to 1,600,000 laborers is being applied to farming. Such is the creative effectiveness of the passenger car, as reported in replies to thousands of cards sent to car owners.

This questionnaire, conducted by the national automobile chamber of commerce, went to automobile license holders taken at random from the registration lists of ten widely diverse states: California, Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Texas, Virginia and Wyoming. The card asked the owner's occupation, the annual mileage, the amount of mileage used for business and for recreation, the amount used to supplement or in lieu of trolley or rail connection. It asked to what extent the passenger car increased the owner's business, and whether it affected his housing problem or living conditions. The present figures are compiled from answers to the first 10,000 cards of this survey which is being further extended until information on the uses of cars by all classes of owners is fully determined.

Ninety per cent. of the owners reported that they used their cars more or less for business, while ten per cent. stated that their automobiles were for recreation use only. The average increased efficiency of the car owner is 57.7 per cent. A number report but small gain in productivity, but this is heavily overbalanced by the testimony of the farmers who have added nearly 70 per cent. to their labor effectiveness, and by the doctors and salesmen whose business is doubled, tripled and in some cases quadrupled through use of the car.

The largest gain in productivity has been in farm life. There are 2,397,000 farmers owning cars. The answers from farmers reported 65 per cent. increase in productivity of the owner or an addition equivalent to 1,600,000 hired men.

The use of the passenger car, accordingly, has meant a net gain to industry of 3,900,000 men. There are more than 7,000,000 automobile owners in the country, each increasing his efficiency 57.7 per cent. through the use of the car, making an addition to the business productivity of the country in excess of 3,900,000 workers. As there are between $60,000 and $80,000 men manufacturing and selling passenger cars, parts and accessories, there remains a net gain of more than 3,000,000 men. If one were to add the productive efficiency of the 3,900,000 motor trucks now in use a still greater gain would be shown.

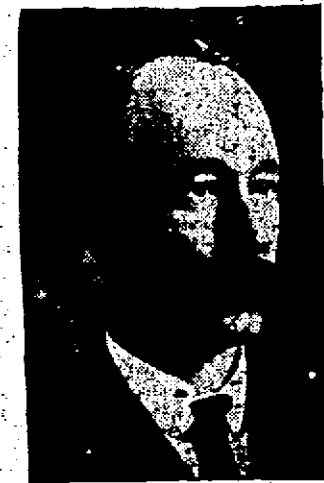

ALL SOULS' CHURCH

The reopening of All Souls' church at the corner of East Merrimack street and Fayette street for service will take place a week from next Sunday, the first service in the renovated church to be held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning with Rev. First Annual Open Golf Tournament of the Season at Country Club Today

The Vesper Country club held its first annual open golf tournament of the season today, with a good representation of golfers present from out of town clubs to compete against the local amateurs. The entry list has been robbed of considerable class by the absence of such players as Outmet, Guilford, Newton and others, who are in New York for the national amateur open event, but such fact will work to the advantage of many golfers a trifle lower in rating, who, timely after are shut out of prizes simply by the superior work of the stars above mentioned. A buffet luncheon will be served at the club house and everything done for the entertainment of guests.

THE FRONT AGAIN

Little Prince, Tom Braden's star pacer, was in the limelight again last Thursday night when he won the 213 pace at Middlebury, Vt. He won in three straight heats, making the first in 2:10 1/4, the second in 2:10 1/4 and walked under the wire in the third heat in 2:13.

SWIMMING RACES

The city park department has arranged a series of swimming races to be held on Labor day afternoon at the municipal pool in the Merrimack river, beginning at 3 o'clock. There will be a 100-yard race, open to all; 75-yard race for boys 16 years and under and a 75-yard race for girls, with no age limit. Two prizes will be given first and second place winners in each event.

PITTS RENEWS FORD CONTRACT

The many friends of the Pitts' Motor Sales will be glad to know that with the signing of a new contract with the Ford Motor company, of Detroit for the sale of Ford cars, trucks and Fordson tractors, the Pitts' concern will, in the year to come, extend the same efficient service and satisfaction employed by them in years past.

Mention is made that the style of the car has in no way been changed, the price remains the same and the duties performed by this wonderful car will remain as before. Last winter the Ford kept going every day through the snow and the people that owned and operated them never worried for a minute about losing time through motor trouble. Warning is sent out by the Pitts

Motor Sales to insure those buyers from being disappointed to buy early for early orders mean early deliveries as it is impossible for us to obtain all the cars as ordered. Some that hesitate will sure remain without their Fords.

Closed cars, although more plentiful than last year, will again—when they are most in demand—be short and it is a wise buyer that immediately places his order for this model of car.

The time payment plan employed by the Pitts Motor Sales will bear investigation. His plan allows all to own a Ford by paying a small amount each month and you have the privilege of using the car while it is being paid for.

Makers of electric clothes-washer estimate that 700,000 machines will be made in this country this year.

LABOR'S HOLIDAY

It was away back in 1883 that the Knights of Labor held a great public parade on the first Monday of September. It was a great success, and hence there was a spontaneous demand for its repetition so that another great parade was held by the order also on the first Monday of September in 1884.

The great masses of organized workmen and working girls seen in parade so impressed the public that the influence of the toilers was greatly enhanced. They won a degree of public sympathy and respect such as they had never experienced before, all through the educational effects of a great public turn-out of the toilers in their respective unions, representing practically every trade and industry in the country.

From that day, the demand that the first Monday of September be made a holiday to be known as Labor day, spread rapidly and met a very cordial response in the legislatures of the various states. In Europe, May 1 has been observed as Labor's holiday since 1890; but here every state in the union, with the exception of New Mexico and the District of Columbia, observes Labor day on the first Monday in September.

The Labor day celebrations have, at various times, offered an excellent opportunity to impress the public mind in favor of higher wages, shorter hours of labor and other reforms which have already been placed upon the statute books.

The various occasions on which labor turned out in full union strength in public parade, have shown the power of the unions in a most impressive way. The machinists, the loomfixers, the carpenters, the cotton weavers, the building laborers, the beavers, the painters and decorators, the barbers, the brotherhood of railroad trainmen and many others, turn out in large numbers and make a splendid showing.

When labor's hosts are seen in such large numbers and such splendid array as presented by the unions representing the numerous crafts on Labor day, they give an impressive demonstration of their numbers and their combined power.

Lowell has had some splendid labor parades and can boast of the most level-headed and conservative unions in the country.

At one time, the I.W.W. got a foothold here and caused a great strike; but the local unions had their eyes opened on that occasion, and have since driven the extreme radicals from their ranks. If every city in this state and nation were as free from labor troubles and the influence of radical agitators as is Lowell, we should have widespread industrial peace with the best of feeling between employer and employee; and except in a very small number of instances, employer and employee would be found co-operating in a most cordial way for their mutual benefit.

Labor is better off today than ever before. The textile cities, and Lowell in particular, have taken a great stride forward in making the textile industry one of the best paid in the country. In the past, say fifteen or twenty years ago, the mill city was regarded as a poor place to live by those who merely visited it occasionally, or who knew it from hearsay; but a revolution has taken place in this respect, so that today the mills pay as high wages, all things considered, as most other industries and even more than many others pay. It was not uncommon to find girls earning $40 per week or upwards in the textile factories, during the war, and even at the present time where business has remained good, this wage is commonly paid to weavers.

Much of the improvement has been due to the labor unions under wise leadership. In attaining these gratifying results, the Labor day parades have been a big factor.

As a result of the efforts of organized labor, sixteen states and Porto Rico have established state funds for insuring at cost, the liability of employers and in seven of the states, the funds are exclusive of the expense attending commercial insurance competition. Workmen's compensation laws have been enacted in 43 states, Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, and rapid progress has been made toward providing industrial accident insurance at cost through state funds. There is need of improvement in some phases of the workmen's compensation law in cases in which it seems to work an injustice. But on the whole, the law as applied in this state is better than the old system in which the employees had to enter suits for damages and assume responsibility for expensive litigation which in many cases absorbed the entire amount of the verdict. Where no verdict was obtained, of course, the case, plunged the plaintiff in debt, making his condition much worse than before.

THE VOTERS' DUTY

As The Sun will not publish on Monday, the state primaries will have opened before another edition appears on the street. We, therefore, take this final opportunity to say a word in reference to the duty of voters in selecting the best candidates seeking nomination. In most cases, there are several candidates seeking the nomination for each of the principal offices. It is the duty of the voters, therefore, to consider well the qualifications of each and be guided by these alone, rather than any other influence.

For the first time, a great many women voters will appear at the primaries to exercise the franchise according to their best judgment. We bespeak better results from the influence of women in politics. The number who will vote at the primaries will be small as compared with the number who will vote for the first time at the polls in November. We are on the eve of great events in the history of this nation. The sweeping changes that have taken place within the past two years may be taken as an indication of the rapidity with which established customs are swept away and a new order of things established.

Momentous problems of reconstruction are to be settled, not only in congress but in the state legislatures. The only guarantee we can have that these questions will be settled right, is to choose honest, competent and reliable men for every public office. The great bulk of the voters were not drafted for war; but they are drafted to exercise their share of the sovereignty in the choice of public servants. The man who votes for an unfit candidate for any office is untrue to his government and he becomes responsible for the consequences of his acts. There would be no corrupt or faithless officials if the people did not select them in preference to the honest, capable and patriotic—a crime against the state.

THE IRISH WARFARE

There is no improvement in the disturbed conditions in Ireland and no apparent move on either side to reach an understanding. In Ulster, a state of war exists as a result of the determination of the unionists to drive the nationalist element out of the cities and industries in which they have been employed. Already thousands have been driven from Limerick and other thousands from the city of Belfast. Most of them had to flee because their homes and places of business were burned down by the unionists and their lives threatened in furious attacks. Whenever they offered any resistance that resulted in a street riot, the military fired into the crowds with the result that scores of people have been killed and hundreds wounded, nearly all nationalists. The police and troops have carte blanche authority to shoot as they please. It is charged against the government that General McBain, in charge of the troops, has made no effort to protect the people whose homes were burned or otherwise destroyed. This is what might be expected owing to the fact that he was the commander of the Ulster volunteers who threatened rebellion if home rule were put in operation.

In addition to this flagrant injustice, Sir Edward Carson now asks that the Ulster volunteers be invested with police authority so that they can shoot whomever they see fit in the name of the law. Inasmuch as Premier Lloyd George is the plant of Carson, it would not be surprising if he would consent to this proposition.

If Mayor MacSwiney of Cork dies, the people may be driven to desperation so that they will do something which would give the army of occupation an excuse for using some of its ammunition in a demonstration of British power somewhat similar to that given at Amritsar in India. Some people believe the government wants just such an opportunity.

TENNESSEE FOOLISHNESS

As one branch of a legislature cannot undo the concurrent work of both, the action of the Tennessee house in voting to expunge from its records all account of its action on the suffrage amendment is supremely foolish. It is useless to attempt to efface the record of a fact that has passed into history.

Even if both branches voted now to reconsider the act of ratification, their action would have no effect, since it would not be in accordance with the established mode of procedure; but the great and all sufficient reason is, that their vote of ratification having been certified by the governor, the amendment to the constitution has been proclaimed by the secretary of state. Tennessee completed the ratification, furnishing the 36th vote; and it cannot now nullify the effect of that vote in changing the constitution so as to legalize woman suffrage.

In 1870, the legislature of New York state attempted to rescind the action of the previous legislature, in 1845, in ratification of the 15th amendment. At that time, the governor had not certified to the affirmative action taken; but after consulting the highest legal authorities, he certified the vote of 1845, so that the negative action of the succeeding legislature was null and void. If states were allowed to change their minds after ratification, it would be such an encouragement to the whole constitution could be overturned by the reversal of ratification states on the question of ratification.

There are some things in reference to the changes in the constitution on which even some legislatures seem to have very vague ideas.

ANOTHER SNAIL

State Treasurer Burrell agrees to act out, and James Jackson, the candidate picked by the republican leaders, is assailed by another sticker candidate, Fred N. Kerr of Winchester, who charges that Jackson is exceeding the legal limit in his expenditures.

Already a bill in equity has been brought asking for an injunction to restrain Jackson and his backers from spending more money for his candidacy than the law allows. The question is now suggested, whether there is a man in the republican party who can run for public office without the too lavish use of money.

SEEN AND HEARD

The fellow who makes the blazest noise doesn't always make the biggest hit.

"Home is where the heart is," sang the poet. Nowadays home is where the leave is.

There are now 1089 women in Australia for every 1000 men, according to a census just completed.

It doesn't make any difference how good a fellow the boss is there's sure to come a time when you can find fault with him.

According to the Retail Dry Goods Association, the cost of delivering retail goods averages 12 cents a package.

Try to be happy these beautiful September days, for being happy yourself you're sure to make somebody else happy.

Ohio's first woman jury satisfied both sides with its verdict, which must perturb the lawyers who love to appeal.

Things We Hate

I am often reminded, says Roger W. Babson, of the old chap who brushed his teeth with yellow soap. He said, "Not because it is good for my teeth but because it is good for my disposition." Sounds foolish, but it is based on a fundamental principle. Just the same, the bitterest pills usually do us the most good—the things we hate to do are usually the best for us. Take hurdles, for instance. It doesn't cost much in effort to hop the low ones, but as they get higher and higher it requires more and more effort, until ultimately it takes every ounce of energy you can muster to clear the high "horses." You can never get anywhere on the track in the business world, or anywhere else by only jumping the low hurdles—doing the easy things. Doing easy things never make a world's champion. It doesn't make any difference whether you are poet or plumber, baker or banker, horseholder or housewife, if you want to get to the top of the heap in your particular field, do the hardest things first.

"Brush your teeth with yellow soap" every morning by starting on the hardest job of the day. Get it done first! It will be good for your disposition and your bank book, and the rest of the day will be easy because the heavy work is done.

Bald Head Row

What flood of memories reference to the bald headed row brings up! That meant the front seats of the orchestra in the theatre supposedly occupied by old gentlemen with young ideas who wanted to get as close to the footlight favorites as possible. And it was supposed, too, that women of the stage, as they capered about or delivered themselves of sentimental speeches, reserved their most welcome smiles of these gentlemen of the billiard ball domes. As a matter of fact it is likely that good press-agenting and comic papers capitalized the idea far beyond its intrinsic worth. Yet, nevertheless, there was a time when patrons of the theatre glimpsed the front rows to see if Methusalem with the desert top-piece, and grinning exposure of face was on the job. But the bald headed row, as an institution, has passed. The movies may have had something to do with it. Bara Theda vamps for all, for the youth in the topmost far away balcony and for old age sitting there in the pit, or vice versa. And, in the houses of the legitimate drama, lack of hair on the part of a patron, "cuts no ice" in the impartial smile bestowed on all by the capable actress. The bald headed row, these days, is fiction.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

With the arrival of cool weather, which seems destined to stay with us, and the return of vacationists after Labor Day, local retailers have great hopes of increased business both in clearing out their present season stocks and in opening up their fall and winter goods. It is the general opinion among these who are to a position to know, that cooler weather would do much to rouse business activity and that simultaneously with better business conditions, the numerous sales by which goods have been offered to the public at reduced prices, will be checked. The merchants used the many sales to reduce the stock on hand and now they find their supplies greatly diminished and are ready to send in new orders. There is also the possibility that retailers may obtain goods at reductions, for the reason that as the season is nearing its end, the manufacturers may offer supplies on hand at lower prices so that they may prepare for the opening of the spring season.

Contrary to the general understanding, "Jamaica ginger" and "jakey" are two entirely different articles. The ginger is the pure unadulterated liquid which may be bought in drug and other stores for medicinal purposes and which is usually sold in small, two ounce bottles. The alcoholic content of the ginger averages from 55 to 58 per cent. "Jakey" is not straight Jamaica ginger, but the ginger mixed with something else, in most instances a non-intoxicating beverage. The ginger alone, is almost too powerful for beverage purposes.

In regard to the distribution of political mail matter, some of the politicians believe that the last impression is the best, or, in other words, that the circulars which are delivered last into the voters' hands will be most effective. That this is so, was stated by one of the local postoffice officials recently. Despite the rush under which letter carriers are working at the present time, paying special attention to the delivery of political matter, some politicians have made the request that their circulars be delivered to the voters Tuesday afternoon even if they are put into the postoffice on the morning of the same day. This is the method adopted to have the word with the voters before they go to the polls. The idea may be good, but it certainly is a hardship on the letter carriers.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS by Olive Roberts Barton

MR. MUSHROOM: SCRATCH

The Fairy Queen thanked Tingaling and the twins for the good money, very sweetly, then a worried little frown appeared upon her face. "Here's the money for everything," said she, pointing to the big pocketbook they had laid in her lap, "but where am I to get people to do things? It's time for the Meadow-Grove school to start, and my chief 'fairy schoolmaster' Scribble Scratch, can't find a soul to help him. He can't teach the sums, he's the janitor, attendance officer, singing teacher, and everything else, all at once. Rubadub is tired out from his duties in Scrub-Up-Land, and here's Tingaling puffing like an engine pulling 40 coal cars, so I know he can't help. Fat people can't teach school anyhow, somehow. Did you ever see a fat schoolmaster or school-marm? No, indeed! Besides, fat people are so jolly they'd have children playing 'riddles and hide-yo' instead of doing their 'times tables' and 'divided by's'."

LOWELL PEOPLE AT SHERBROOKE FAIR

The Agricultural fair at Sherbrooke, Que., which opened Aug. 28, is being brought to a close today and it is expected that tomorrow and Monday a great many Lowell people who have spent the week up north will return to their homes. The rush from Lowell to Sherbrooke by train this year has not been as great as in former years, owing to the increase in railroad fares and also to the fact that there was no reduction of rates during the fair week. Up to about three years ago there were special excursions from Boston to Sherbrooke during the fair week, but when the railroads were taken over by Uncle Sam excursions at reduced rates were abandoned and the government's policy in that respect is still in force.

Although there has been no rush noticeable on the trains many Lowell people took in the fair. Some went by train but the majority went by auto. Some went last week to attend the fair, which was being held at Trois Rivières, others went this week to take in the same sights at Sherbrooke, while others will go next week and the week after, to see the fair at Quebec and Toronto. Among those of this city who took in the Sherbrooke fair were Arthur Pelletier, Wilfred Acland, J. L. Brard, Arthur Genest and family and many others.

PROBATION OFFICER'S REPORT

Probation Officer Slattery's reports for the month of August, just past, show that the list of drunks numbered 225. Two hundred and seventeen of that number were males and 11 were females. In comparing the figures for August of this year with those of last year, considerable increase is apparent. For August, 1919, the number of drunks was 182, 173 being males and nine females.

VACCINATION SESSIONS

Although 351 children were vaccinated this week at the board of health office at city hall, this total does not include coming to the number estimated for the three weeks to come. Despite repeated notices, parents still persist in bringing children to the office at times other than the ones set. Once again these are factory afternoons, except Saturday, Sunday and holidays, between 1 and 5 o'clock.

Quarter Century Ago

From the old Sun:
"Delegates John Slack and Charles A. Carey to the National Convention of Letters Carriers to be held at Philadelphia all next week, departed this afternoon en route to New York via Fall River line. Since that day Mr. Slack has passed away but Mr. Carey is still in the service and as active as ever."

Merchants' Week

Says the old Sun:
"The Merchants' week committee announced the main features for the celebration as follows, allowing plenty of time for the visitors to do business in the stores:
"Tuesday, October 1. At one o'clock veteran fireman's muster. Evening, band concert.
"Wednesday, morning, military parade. At 6 a. m. to be announced. Evening, antique and horribles parade, band concert.
"Thursday, morning at 11 o'clock, balloon ascension. Evening, fireworks, band concert."

In addition to this entertainment program, all the stores had provided special attractions for bargain seekers and put on holiday attire in honor of the occasion.

Twenty-Five Years Wed

Says the old Sun:
"Edward G. Twohey, the well known contractor, and Rose McKearney were united in marriage Monday evening at St. Peter's parochial residence by Rev. Fr. McManus. The bride was attended by Miss Rose E. Norris and Mr. Edward Murphy was best man.
"The marriage of Rev. Frank O. Hall and Miss Vermorel A. Swan took place last evening at the residence of the bride's grandfather, Mr. Daniel Swan, on East Merrimack street. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. Almon Gundison of Worcester, the Episcopal service being read.
"Mr. John T. Cairns and Miss Eunice M. Brooks were united in marriage Saturday by Rev. Dr. Court. Miss Eda M. Brooks attended the bride and the best man was Mr. John S. Scott.
"Mr. James W. Buzzell and Miss Bella Lihussier were united in marriage by Rev. Robert Court, D.D., Saturday, at the residence of the bride in Hay State court. Miss Esther A. Lihussier was bridesmaid and Mr. Alton Buzzell was best man. The bride was charmingly attired in a sky blue tulle dress with lace trimmings and garlands of bride's roses."

Labor Day

Lowell had no public observance of Labor day quarter century ago, but the following from the old Sun would indicate that it was highly enjoyed:
"Labor day is peculiarly a toiler's holiday and this fact was very much in evidence yesterday. The day was perfect and everybody who could, became a worshiper of Nature. All of the popular resorts were packed during the day."

CITY DEATH RATE

The city death rate has shown a steady decline for the past three weeks to the low level of 2.63 for the current week. There were 21 deaths this week, against 22 last week and 27 for the week just previous. During the corresponding week a year ago there were 27 deaths, 11 of which were of year or under. This week nine infants' deaths were recorded.

The secretary has returned at Dundalaja where he directed the pursuit of Zamora.

healthy skin

Yellow, blotchy skin is not only disagreeable and repulsive in itself, but it is the outward sign of biliousness and a sluggish condition of the liver, which may gradually undermine your health.
Don't let this continue. Use "L. F." Atwood's Medicine to keep the liver, stomach and other digestive organs working smoothly. You will feel better, have more energy and your complexion will become clear and healthy. Your blood will absorb more strength from your food, and your system will be better able to withstand disease.
Keep a bottle always ready. Take a liberal dose at the first symptom of constipation or sick headache. The true "L. F." will benefit the whole family, young and old. It is absolutely harmless, and gives relief without weakening some other organ. For 60 years it has brought health and happiness to thousands, and never failed to justify the confidence placed in it. A "Front Porch Campaign" With Needle and Crochet Hook Is an Ideal Way To Decide Christmas Gift Problem

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—"Well! Next year I'm going to have my gifts all laid away and ready to send along before Christmas. I'm not going to rush like this again!"

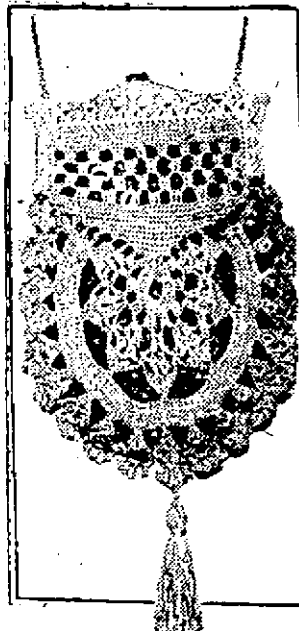

Who didn't say that last year, about

SATIN ROSETTE FOR USE ON LINGERIE

—well, say the day after New Year's? And the year before, and the year before that—and why go further?

New summer breezes and Christmas gifts don't conflict in the least. In truth, they make a very pleasant com-ination. An easy chair on a vine-scattered porch, or beneath a big tree on the lawn, and a work basket close by filled with odds and ends of laces and colorful ribbons, embroidery floss and a crochet hook—everybody knows the sort of work basket augur well for honest-to-goodness "best wishes" to be worked into a collection of tasteful hand-made gifts.

Adorable Fudge Apron

There are aprons, for instance—aprons of every mode and material, from the tiny white tea apron to the all-enveloping kitchen apron. But here's a really bewitching idea for a fudge apron. In a straight piece of linen—towel—may be used—a circular opening is cut for the head, leaving enough length to reach to the

at the bottom and at the neck. The entire apron and belt is outlined in a loose buttonhole stitch in black. Rick-rack braid or a narrow crocheted edge may be used instead of the buttonhole stitch.

Net Boudoir Cap

Of the hundred and one possibilities for dainty boudoir caps, here is one which is made of narrow lengths of very fine, cream-colored net, joined together with equally fine insertion. It is shaped to fit the head snugly with a little fullness at the nape of the neck. Tiny rosebuds of blue or orchid cover the net close to the face. From the center a satin streamer, tipped with a larger rosebud, drops to the edge of the cap.

Satin Rosettes

Many pretty lingerie accessories can be fashioned from satin ribbon of varying widths. One of these is the rosette. This particular rosette, illustrated, is about five inches in diameter and is intended to adorn the flounce of a silken petticoat. Miniature rosettes of the same pattern are just as suitable on camisole, gown or sachet bag. With wide ribbon forming the rosette proper, French knots of narrowst baby ribbon make the center, and wider, flowered baby ribbon forms a looped cascade beneath.

Lady Lookabout

Sometimes as I look upon a group of young girls gathered in the square, or elsewhere, I must own that I am not fascinated by the present day posture; the hunched shoulders; the stunted, the high abdomen; the hollow back. No one can make me believe that this posture is the one taught by teachers of callisthenics. These teachers favor the military carriage. The posture is cultivated from other sources. It may be that I stumbled across its fair quite accidentally when I spent some time at the city library one day this week, looking over the magazines on the table reserved for women. Here I found the young girl of today in all her charming inexperience of pose as outlined above, in such periodicals as Vogue, Harpers and Vanity Fair. Page after page of her there were, and not a straight pair of shoulders or a straight spine in the lot.

Paris as the fountain head of all that is correct in fashion was quoted incessantly by these magazines, and as long as the feminine world takes its inspiration from Paris, anything may be expected. As I looked upon one of the groups in the square a few days ago, I let my imagination run ahead for a few years, and I saw these same young girls with the added weight that the years bring to nearly every woman. The hunched shoulders carried a hump of fat; the flat chests were flatter, and so on. Every line now so carefully cultivated, will exaggerate with time. I could let myself grow quite pessimistic, but black indeed is the cloud through which one ray of sunlight cannot pierce, and I recall the wonderful adaptability of the human figure, responding, as it always has, to the slightest dictate of fashion, as though made of India rubber. Herein lies the only hope of avoiding a distorted middle age. It is up to Paris.

Lovely Georgette Crepe

One of the loveliest materials ever conceived is georgette crepe. Its sheer, silken daintiness makes an appeal to every woman, yet the very features through which it makes its appeal are causing its downfall. Love for its transparent sheerness has been its Waterloo. Beautiful waists have been fashioned from it, but when women choose to wear these waists with at most no underwear, the knell was sounded for the popularity of georgette crepe. Not perhaps among those who like georgette worn in this way, but for the great majority of women who frown upon that exposure thus caused. Should one doubt the passing popularity of georgette, all she needs do is consult the advertisements of many leading stores, here and elsewhere. Georgette crepe waists are being sold for a fraction of their former prices. Also the quality of the goods has deteriorated, the thinner and therefore poorer grades of the goods being the most sought.

To the Women Voters

Every woman in Lowell who has been alert enough to see that her name is on the list of registered voters will no doubt mark her ballot at the state primaries Tuesday. Elsewhere in The Sun will be found an announcement of the hours and places of voting. As this is the first time for voting for many Lowell women, it will be well to study these announcements carefully, as The Sun will not be published on Monday, Labor day. A study of the ballot to be posted in every polling booth also is to be recommended, as it is doubtful if women as a whole are familiar with the candidates for the different offices. Remember ourselves, girls, we are as familiar as the men are. What do they know about the various candidates beyond their names? Many of the names appearing on the ballot will be new to them as well as to us, so whichever way we vote, at least we can do no worse than has been done. As far as I can see, a cross on a ballot, in ninety-nine per cent. of the cases, is a shot in the dark, and it is immaterial whether that cross be made by man or woman. For one hundred years we have struggled for suffrage. Now we have it. Let us use it—intelligently, if possible.

The School Problem

The time is at hand when many parents whose children have been working through the summer must decide whether or no they will return to school or forego further education. For the parents who actually need the earnings of their children to help support the home, there is no decision to be made. The question answers itself. The children of those parents must continue at work. These children, thankfully, are greatly in the minority. The great majority of homes are not actually dependent upon the wages of their fourteen and fifteen-year children, however welcome those wages may be, and these are the children whose parents should concern themselves greatly over the question of a little more school for Thomas or Mary.

There is no question about the lure of the wages offered the young boy and girl today, and giving them up is hard, yet no child is a skilled employe, nor is a trade which requires time to acquire, paying high wages on the start. Therefore if a young person is drawing a high wage, it may be safely assumed that he is not acquiring a worthwhile training. Therefore, an unskilled help is always at hand, the young person may be assured that even after years of application to his job, he never will draw much more than the first day he worked at it.

A well known educator has said that the employer of a fourteen or sixteen-year-old boy should pay that boy yearly or one hundred dollars a week to repay him for the opportunities he has forever cut himself from by ab-

First Lady of the Land Finds Real Happiness In Nursing the President Back to Health

N.E.A. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—For a solid year the first lady of the land has shut up her beauty and charm in the sick-room and private office of the president.

There have been anxious days; many of them; but Edith Wilson has been happy in her hard role of nurse and business woman—happier, some say, than even before.

No Easy Place

Sentimental Susie, sighing to be the wife of an illustrious man, doesn't realize that it is a lot easier and more comfortable to be plain Mrs. William Jones of Blunkville.

It is never a simple matter, being a president's wife.

At best it isn't all pearly, pretty clothes, balls and lovely trips to Europe.

At worst it is a job of sober service that takes poise, patience, tact, brains, self-sacrifice and sturdy physical stamina.

As in Mrs. Wilson's case—unparalleled in White House history—the test may come without warning, bringing a burden of work and anxiety that only an exceptional woman can successfully carry. A woman, say, whose entire character finds expression in one well-marked channel—a love which is concentrated upon one object.

In Mrs. Wilson's case it is her husband. Ask anyone in Washington:

"What interests has the president's wife?"

"The president," is the invariable answer.

"What work appeals to her?"

"The president's," is the reply.

"Surely she has some pot ambition, some—"

"To make the president happy?"

"Well, has she talents? Hobbies?"

"Yes. Her talents are reading about playing golf, discussing human affairs, writing letters, analyzing reports and pardon pleas, hunting up good detective stories, supervising the household, motoring and movies—all with, for and because of the president."

Surprised Many

This devotion to the president took a form that caused many a seasoned politician a start of astonishment about a year ago.

They knew her for a charming woman, with gracious Virginia-born manners and a bright way of telling an anecdote or dinky story.

But that she should develop almost overnight the kind but stern competence of a trained nurse, the tact of an experienced diplomat and the resourcefulness of a professional entertainer, made them sit up and take notice.

Senator Amazed

"I confess," Senator Carter Glass told me the other day, "I was amazed at the promptness with which Mrs. Wilson renounced every other interest in life and from the moment of the president's illness applied herself to helping and sustaining him."

"She showed from the first a grasp of affairs that surprised us all. She never intended, yet she was always there, ready and able to write a good letter, convey the president's view to this or that official."

Always Cheerful

"No matter how much serious work she did, she always kept her brightness and sense of humor, and the optimism that never failed her even when the president's condition was gravest."

"She had a hard task, too, to sense exactly the right proportion of work and diversion to allow him. His activity and conscientiousness made him restless, at times difficult. Yet Mrs. Wilson's common sense judgment always guided her right."

Now that President Wilson is better and able to work three or four a day, Mrs. Wilson's nursing duties have merged into those of a trained personal secretary.

Twenty's Praise

Joseph P. Tumulty, apparently far from feeling that his nose has been put out of joint by the first lady's assumption of secretarial services, voices enthusiastic admiration. He says if he "knew how to write" he would like to "write a book about Mrs. Wilson" so that people would "know how wonderful she really is."

"—so versatile and dependable," is how Mr. Tumulty puts it. "She has no showy talents, yet she can do everything that really counts."

"She does things in a businesslike way, but always with tact. She knows how to meet people and entertain."

breaching his education. This boy is out of the race. Handicapped as he is, he cannot compete.

Another feature which parents are likely to overlook, is that everyone of their children contributes to the support of the public schools, whether or not their children partake of the opportunities the schools offer. The man who does not pay a property tax may argue that he does not contribute to this support. He does. Through his landlord he contributes just as surely as though he went personally to the tax collector's office. The parents who keep their children in school take advantage of the support they give the schools. The parents who send their children to work at an early age are supporting the schools for the children of other parents—not their own.

All this is beside the fact of the better educated boy having greater opportunities than the boy with less education. The poorest kind of a parent will admit that. So, parents, do not let yourselves be deluded by the seemingly high wages your child is bringing home. The child is paying dearly for them, and he will pay as long as he lives. He has a right to the education this country offers him. Are you going to sell his birthright for a mess of pottage?

them. She's a splendid story teller and mimic. Yet she never loses dignity nor says an indiscreet thing. "She is a woman who can keep a secret. There's just one secret she can't keep, and that is her love for the president. That is her whole life—her devotion to him."

Devoted Daughter

Being the president's wife certainly has not set Mrs. Wilson apart from her family, the Bollings, to whom she is devoted with the very second-best devotion of her heart. Every day, during the hour or two when the president is occupied with Dr. Grayson's electrical treatments and rest periods, Mrs. Wilson walks over to see her mother at the Powhatan hotel.

"She is the most loving and loyal woman I ever knew," says the former Miss Benham, now Mrs. Heim, who for years was Mrs. Wilson's personal secretary. "Working for her was never anything but pleasure—and I assure you the lot of a secretary to the president's wife can be far from a happy one."

Her First Interest

"What interested her most," I asked, "when you were secretary?"

"Her husband," promptly replied Mrs. Heim, running true to form.

"She is a woman who asks nothing else of life than to devote it to the man she loves."

"Quiet and home appeal to her. She goes nowhere, holds no receptions, serves but an occasional cup of tea in the cabinet ladies, has no entertainment but the White House phonograph and movies. Yet I believe she is happier in her life of seclusion and constant service than she ever was before."

SWOLLEN JOINTS GAVE GREAT PAIN

The chief symptom of rheumatism is pain. The most successful treatment is the one that quickly relieves and banishes this disagreeable symptom. Many rheumatic people suffer pains that could be avoided by building up the blood. When rheumatism is associated with thin blood it cannot be corrected until the blood is built up.

Mr. Oscar Downs who lives at No. 1 Ashland street, Haverhill, Mass., suffered from rheumatism for years but he was more fortunate than a great many victims of the disease, for he found a remedy that so built up his entire system that he is now free from rheumatism. When seen recently at his home, Mr. Downs said:

"I suffered from rheumatism, off and on, for years and at times it was so severe that I was flat on my back for weeks. My trouble began, I believe, when I caught a severe cold while in a badly run-down condition. The cold seemed to settle in my joints. My hands became stiff and swollen at the joints and there were times when I could hardly use them. They pained all the time. There was also a pain across my back. When I straightened up the pain went through me like a knife. Both my knees were swollen and stiff and I was just able to drag myself along. I began to think that I should be a cripple all my life and became greatly discouraged."

"My wife had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit so I decided to try them. After taking the second box I could feel that the pain was less severe. The swelling gradually disappeared from my hands and knees and then I got so that I could walk without effort. I continued taking the pills until my blood was built up. The pills also strengthened my nerves and I sleep well now. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they saved me from a life of pain."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by your own druggist or will be sent direct by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write for the free book, "Building Up the Blood," containing a special chapter on rheumatism.—Adv.

PRIMITIVE INFLUENCE SHOWN BY GOWN

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The craze for embroidery that has already started promises to lead to all sorts of queer effects. At a recent fashion show the "primitive" influence was very marked. Here is one of the gowns.

It is black suede cloth, made in one piece with the opening at the side and the foot-hem cut in four corners. Traced on the front in two long bands are strange figures and designs after the manner of ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics down the sides and across the body cut sleeve—complete the gown, though the designers, with its towering girdle and the knitted "miser's" purse and the animal scarf all tend to emphasize the aforesaid "primitive" effect.

ADVANCE GUARD ON THE COMMON

The advance guard of the coast defense recruiting party which is to encamp on the South common in this city for a period of ten days beginning next Tuesday, is now stationed on the common. Two men supplied with pup-tents were sent to this city by the commander of the unit, which is now in Lawrence with its million candle power searchlight, German trophies, anti-aircraft guns, machine guns, mines and so on, gathering up recruits, to make final arrangements for the arrival of the recruiting party. There will be 30 men in the recruiting train including a band and a regular moving picture outfit. Col. J. P. Howell, coast artillery corps, commanding the coast defenses of Boston will be in charge, assisted by Major William M. Widman and Chaplain Harry C. Fraser.

William and Mary college at Williamsburg, Va., founded in 1623, was the first to establish a chair of law and of history.

AMERICAN GIRL TO WED DUKE?

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The Duchess de Chaulnes, who formerly was Theodore Shonts, daughter of Theodore Shonts, late president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. of New York, will wed, it is reported, Duke de Crescut. The duke is remembered here as the last lover of Gaby Deslys.

ALL-STAR VAUDEVILLE AT B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE, NEXT WEEK

Real variety, with several different kinds of musical interpretation, will feature tomorrow's special bill at the B. F. Keith theatre. Susan Tompkins, whom there are very few better violinists in vaudeville, will be retained for the day, and a special act, will give his odd mixture of antique and modern, classical and popular. The Gypsy Singers, who have scored better, perhaps, than any before, will also be on the program, as well as Chase & La Tour in the comedy new play. In addition there will be three new acts, as follows: Russell & Evans, a man and a woman singing; Leavitt & Park, comedy songs and patter; and Billy Layden, a singer of repute.

For Labor day week, opening Monday, all-star aggregation of vaudeville performers will be featured. Everything that one can wish in the variety line will be offered, with Ralph Dunbar's Salon Singers, among the prime features. "The Family Honor" is a mixed quartet and an acrobatic. In every respect the "Singers" resemble a concert organization. They first attracted much attention by appearing jointly with William Jennings Bryan on the Chautauqua circuit. Since that time they have held the boards on their own merits.

Arthur and Morton Havel, honest-to-goodness brothers, have joined hands and will be seen in "Suits," a screaming farce comedy, based on a clothing store dummy. Arthur Havel has been here in the past, and the doors have given the greatest of satisfaction through his mirth-making comedy. Morton Havel is no less a winner. Their act is rated as one of the very best in vaudeville.

Julia Nash, with a splendid legitimate stage record, is now in the two-day, associated with C. H. O'Donnell, in "Almost Single." The piece was written by Mr. O'Donnell and Kate a Singer's domestic dash, a triangle without a problem at any of its points. Successful comedy is derived from the serious situation, handled lightly. Miss Nash is a delightful actress, one of much resource and personal charm. Mr. O'Donnell is scarcely less capable.

There are so many booles it is multiply hard to track of them. Jed is one of the score, more or less, and he is a decidedly versatile chap, as is demonstrated in his splendid act. Margaret Ford is a newcomer with new things in the way of song, recitations, and Redford & Winchester are clever and eccentric jugglers. Sam Green and Mildred Myra have "A Merry Moment" as their offering. King Grams, Topics of the Day and a comic picture will be shown at all performances.

TOP-NOTCH BILL AT THE STRAND FOR COMING WEEK—GOOD SUNDAY PROGRAM

General Manager Soriero's guarantee that the patrons of The Strand were to see bigger and better vaudeville programs during the coming fall and winter season is again borne out in the offering which he announces for the coming week. For the first three days of the week starting with Monday, Monday, William Farnum, the screen's greatest lover, will be shown in his greatest film offering, "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," and Mabel Normand will be presented in a comedy, "The Slim Princess." For the last three days of the week, beginning with matinee on Thursday, a big triple feature bill will be given, including "The Yellow Typhoon," "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," and "The Slim Princess." Besides these features there will be the usual other contributions, all given and shown "The Strand way."

The sacred concert for Sunday will have the usual five acts of refined vaudeville and an entire change of photoplays.

William Farnum in an entirely new sort of a role is promised by the audience news of "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," which will head the bill for the first three days of the week. It's the story of hidden treasure and Farnum plays two parts, first of the youth who finds the treasure and then the man who comes back to claim his own. The treasure was hidden in a cave, not by man, and is in the bed of a river. This all sounds very promising. Also, of course, there is a pretty love story—and the name of Louise Lovely in the cast is indication enough that it will be well acted. Others in the cast are Henry J. Hebert, Harry Dever, G. Raymond Nye, Claire DeLore, Molly Bishop and others. With such a cast patrons may expect abundant action. The story is by Jackson Gregory and the scenario by Charles Kenyon.

Pat girls and thin girls is the all-absorbing question in the beautiful little city of Morovenia. Much do the men of Morovenia admire the large proportions of stout women, but their ruler is accursed with a slim and beautifully modeled daughter, known among the inhabitants of the city, and spoken of with awe, as the "slim princess." Much is she hated by the young men of Morovenia and great is her sorrow. A lawn fête is given to find a suitor for the slim one and over the walls climbs her affinity in the shape of a husky American. Obstacles are placed between him and the princess. Does he overcome them or does he not? This problem will be solved for you if you should like to see "The Slim Princess."

The usual comedy and the newest Weekly, as well as the latest musical numbers will add to the attractiveness and general enjoyment of the program.

For the last three days of the week, commencing Thursday, a three-feature bill is promised. Never has Viola Dana been afforded greater opportunity to display her irresistible charm than in "The Chorus Girl's Romance," which will head the bill. It might be added that there are other chances provided by the story, which is adapted from the fiction of F. Scott Fitzgerald, and published originally in the Saturday Evening Post under the title of "Head and Shoulders." The second chance Miss Dana has is to shine as the leading woman in a musical comedy first-nighter in New Haven, the little star is called upon to cause her shoulders to be agitated in that peculiarly modern and provocative manner which has been labeled shimmy. And those who have advanced news of Viola's most recent picture say she does. To summarize, it's programmed as a "sprightly play of the stage, college campus and the shimmy."

"Jer Call Me Jim" is an adaptation of J. G. Holland's book entitled "Seven Oaks," and is Will Rogers latest Goldenwyn starring vehicle. Mr. Rogers' personality is brought out to the greatest advantage in this story. He portrays the hunter and trapper who is in love with the village milliner. One of the most friends goes insane and is put in the miserable poor house at Seven Oaks. Does a little missionary work bring relief to his friend, Rogers' son, Jim? The second big feature for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be a feature well told.

The third big feature on the bill is producer Larry Semon, the screen's newest comedy king in "Solid Concrete." This humor-making film creation is said to have more real good heart than any of Semon's former efforts.

Another attractive program of motion picture features will be given on Sunday afternoon at the Merrimack Square theatre. "Bringing Up Eddy," a most entertaining comedy production, featuring an all-star cast, and "The Courtship," starring popular Hattie J. Hamilton, will be the outstanding attractions. The usual excellent surrounding program will also be presented.

Labour day marks the opening of the photoplay season of the fall of 1920 at the Merrimack Square theatre and the occasion promises to be doubly notable in the popular range of street-wise human annals because of Paramount-Artcraft week, given over to special features made by this nationally known producing concern, also opens on the holiday.

With these two observations in mind Manager Nelson has assembled one of the strongest bills that any motion picture house in Lowell has ever presented. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday's big feature will be "Civilian Clothes," the noted story based on a war episode, which has had such a successful stage career.

The story deals with an army captain who married a society girl in France, while she was dazzled by his handsome appearance in uniform, and discovered upon his return to America, after having been reported killed in action, that she was reluctant to own him in his over-out civilian clothes. To cure her of her snobbish ideas, he became a butler in her household and after several dramatic developments that fell in with his plans exactly, he convinced her that clothes don't make the man.

The leading role is taken by Thomas Meighan, one of the most prominent men in the motion picture field. His rating as a star is of the highest class and since his appearance in "The Attraction Man," his popularity has increased by leaps and bounds. His admirable Clirichon in Cecil B. DeMille's top production of "Mala and Female" placed his stellar fame on an enduring foundation and it is vastly strengthened by his latest picture. In "Civilian Clothes" he has a role that suits his talents and personality admirably.

The second big feature for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be a

Mill Stories for Mill Workers

The following communication is received:

Editor Sun:

I am glad you gave a little of the history of the founding of the mill as the foreigners here have no idea how they were started. I work in a mill department in which there are Greeks, Poles, Armenians, French, English, Irish, Portuguese, Lithuanians, Finns and several other nationalities.

There are also socialists who talk among these people and try to convince them that the mills were built with money taken from the operatives by dishonest means. The men and women whose money built the mills set no credit. I hope you will give more of the history of the Lowell mills.

Truly yours,

A. WEAVER.

THREE VETERAN MILL WORKERS

The following very interesting communication came in this morning and has been rushed through in a hurry. We will have more about these mill hands later. Meanwhile:

Editor Sun:

For the information of "Margaret" in last Saturday's Sun, I am sure she will be interested in the following communication which I think will stand as a record not only in the mills of Lowell but in all New England for one department alone. The Merrimack mill holds this record. The first employee I wish to speak of is John Greeley, a grand old citizen of Broadway, who started to work in the Merrimack mill room in 1875. He is still plugging away in the same faithful way that he has been doing for the last 45 years. The next one is John Danahy, known throughout the city wherever mill spinners are spoken of as the prince of third hands. Johnny started in the Merrimack mill in 1874 as a back boy, was advanced to doffer, then to spinner, then to third hand which position he holds today. He has the respect and good wishes of the spinners, for Johnny has been a friend to them all. The third one is John Greeley, who started to work in the Merrimack mill in 1876 as a mule spinner. He was advanced to third hand, then to second hand and finally reached the goal he aimed for when he became a doffer. He has been a doffer for 45 years. He is now in the room, which position he holds today. After 45 years of faithful service, he has always given satisfaction to employer and employees. Now, Mr. Editor, the length of service of these three faithful employees combined is one hundred and thirty-five years or an average of 45 years in one department. Before closing I must mention one other faithful old employee of another department, the card room, my old friend, Miss Annie Burke, who started in the Merrimack 40 years ago, and is still a faithful employee, considered by her overseer, the genial Mark Gaffney himself, an old employee, as one of the best spinner tenders in the Merrimack mill.

HARTLEY & KELLEHER

For the best workmanship, the highest grades of materials and the cheapest prices in the wiring for electrically, see Hartley & Kelleher, electrical contractors at 47 Union street. These men have made a special study of house and office wiring and they know their business. Their motto is "Live and let live."

THE NEW YORK SHOP

French pleating is the specialty of the New York shop, room 212 Bradley building, 147 Central street. This modiste establishment is being conducted by Miss M. Cognac, who also does himstitching, pleat-edging, button-holes and cloth-covered buttons.

THE DREWETT CART

Home-made cooking is what you don't find in every lunch room of the city, but if you patronize the Drewett cart at the corner of Paige and Brookline streets you will feel right at home, for the chef of this eating emporium makes it his business to cook food just as his mother used to do and that is saying a lot. This place is where the boys meet.

JOHN H. O'NEIL

How is your furnace? Have you looked it over since last spring? If not it is time you got busy, for within a short time you will need its services. In order to make sure that the heater will be in good running condition for the winter months it would be well for you to call in John H. O'Neil, sheet metal worker at 115 Gorham street, who knows everything worth knowing about furnaces.

HAT BLEACHERY

The end of the straw hat for the 1920 summer is approaching, which means that men will soon have recourse to the felt lid. E. H. Severy, Inc., proprietors of the Hat Bleachery at 133 Middle street are now ready to clean, dye and reblock your last fall's hat and it may pay you to bring back to life the hat you discarded last fall. Remember new lids are very expensive.

CENTRALVILLE FRUIT CO.

All kinds of fruits in season, pure candies, delicious ice cream and tobacco and cigars are on sale at the Centralville Fruit Co., 290 Bridge street. This store is being managed by C. A. Kanteles, a man who has had a wide experience in this particular line of business, and one who knows just how to serve the public.

Improvement Predicted

A bulletin of the Federal Reserve bank has the following relative to the business outlook:

"Continued readjustment of economic and business conditions generally has been the characteristic feature of the month of August. There are already indications that the transition period is nearing a halt and that an improvement of the general situation is in sight. Nevertheless, there is still much to be done before business, prices and industry can be regarded as having settled down upon a stable basis. In manufacturing districts Federal Reserve agents report dulness of business, accompanied by unusual reaction and hesitation on the part of the middlemen and dealers. This is the result of reaction among consumers, who have refused to pay excessive prices, and of some tendency to unemployment in various directions, due to the letting down of demand.

No Cause For Discouragement

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 4.—With prospects of the greatest crop in the history of the United States, with under-expansion of railroads rather than of over-expansion of business to blame for many troubles, with banks of the nation in splendid condition the country will enter next year with a vast fund of new wealth, and the situation is one to be viewed with optimism.

This is the opinion of George L. Tickner, vice president of the Syracuse Trust company, who has seen many fluctuations in the nation's business during the past quarter-century as a banker. The expression common everywhere that "money is tight" isn't relevant. It's a misnomer, in the opinion of Mr. Tickner.

"With sugar high in price, no one says sugar is tight," he says. "The expression is that it is in big demand. There is no harm in money rates being high. The present rate of the Bank of England steadying the whole British Empire is 7 per cent. The Federal Reserve bank of the United States on business paper is 7 per cent. The Bank of Japan is charging 8 per cent."

"This covers a very large area, three countries doing a terrific amount of manufacturing, a general commercial business. If money were at 4 per cent this would mean that nobody was doing any business, and that there was no demand for money to employ in trade and take care of production."

MECHANICS PHALANX

Local Organization Holds Meeting and Discusses Plans For Annual Meeting and Dinner

A meeting under the new charter of the Lowell Mechanics' Phalanx was held in the company rooms in the armory in Westford street, last night. There was a good attendance.

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting and of communications, Major Kittredge reported progress being made at the camp near Johnson's corner in Tyngsboro, and stated that one week from Sunday there would be served to all men who wished to spend the day there. The camp is under repair at the present time. It was said that the annual meeting and dinner of the phalanx would be held soon, possibly at the Dracut rifle range, and it was proposed that a target shoot be planned for that day. W. H. Boyle was elected a committee of one to choose a team to represent the phalanx at the shoot to be held in Wakefield September 11 and 12 under the auspices of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston.

A committee of three, Messrs. Robillard, Brock and Maille was appointed to pick out a basketball team for the coming winter season. It was inquired that games could be arranged with some of the fast semi-amateur teams of the city. A number of new members were admitted to the organization last night and plans were made for the secretary to send out a circular letter to all former members of Co. C that they might be persuaded to join.

FAREWELL PARTY

Miss Hilda Riley, a resident of North Chelmsford, who on next Tuesday will begin a training course as nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, was tendered a farewell party at her home last evening. The young woman was presented a travelling bag and was showered with best wishes. Musical numbers were given and refreshments were served. The success of the party was due to the efforts of Miss Florence Welch.

LALLAS AUTO SERVICE

Autoists are reminded of the fact that at 41 Moody street is located the Lallas Auto Service, a place where all kinds of accessories for all kinds of automobiles can be bought at prices that are reasonable. This firm also deals in auto tires and has on hand handsome closed cars for all occasions.

LYNN SHOE STORE

The Lynn Shoe Store at 305 Merrimack street is the place where one can purchase shoes at manufacturers' prices. These people have come to Lowell to help reduce the high cost of living and their ship is of great benefit to the residents of this city.

FRIENDS' BREAD

Friend's like home-made bread is on sale at all grocers, because it is pure, wholesome and nutritious. It is the ideal loaf for those who are accustomed to home-made bread. It retails at 12 cents. Try it.

Word has been received at the local office of the American Red Cross in Merrimack st. from the federal vocational board that the following ex-service men of this city have been granted compensation by the bureau of war risk insurance and that they are eligible to vocational training: John Gangle, 125 Adams street; Covlin H. McKenzie, 23 Methuen street; Arthur Belsvert, 426 Moody street; Joseph Boulanger, 209 Howard street; Charles Germain, 493 Moody street; John B. Logan, 11 Raymond place; William J. Hunt, 3 Fourth street; Steven G. Wotton, 97 Homestead avenue; James E. Gregoire, 6 Varney street; William L. Kivlan, 47 Highland avenue; Joseph N. Robarge, 115 Tucker street; Joseph H. Lynch, 113 Adams street.

CITY WATER RATES

Increase in Departmental Revenues For First Six Months Due to Water Rates

The increase in city water rates is accountable for the increase in departmental revenues for the first six months of this year, about $14,000 in excess of receipts for a similar period of time in 1919.

The figures are: 1920, $261,707.73; 1919, $247,392.73. It is practically assured that the department will sell enough water this year to balance the total expenditures. The excess to August 31 of the current year is $14,000, being the total overdraft of January 12, 1920 and this will be met by the increased rates, the city auditor believes.

LIST OF TEACHERS

The list of teachers at the North Chelmsford schools which will reopen for the fall term next Tuesday as announced by the school committee is as follows:

Princeton Street school—Gertrude M. Jones, principal, grade 3; Ella A. Hutchinson, grade 7; Julia B. MacPherson, grade 6; May D. Sleeper, grade 5; Alice M. Flynn, grade 4; Genevieve E. Jantzen, grade 3; Kath. McDermet, grade 2; Catherine E. Highland Avenue school—Laura B. Desmarais, principal, grades 7 and 8; Berangere M. Roy, grades 5 and 6; Marie T. Hain, grades 3 and 4; Margaret McGinness, grades 1 and 2.

West school—Bertha H. Long, principal, grammar room; Ruth A. Whittemore, intermediate room; Mary C. Coffey, primary room.

Leonore Cognac, of Avon street, employed by the Emery Cognac estate is confined to his home suffering from a fracture of the nose and numerous abrasions in the face as a result of an accident, which occurred Thursday in his garage at his home. Mr. Cognac was cranking his automobile when suddenly the engine back fired, the crank striking him in the face. He received treatment at a local hospital and later was taken to his home.

The per capita taxation in Great Britain is three times that in the United States, according to the chancellor of the British exchequer.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully I, the undersigned, William E. Giroux, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Della Giroux, now of Chateaugay in the State of New York, at Chateaugay in said State of New York, the seventeenth day of September, A. D. 1919, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Della Giroux lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Lynn, Massachusetts, and at Lowell, Massachusetts, and at Chateaugay, that your libellant prays that a divorce be decreed between your libellant and the said Della Giroux, being wholly regardless of the same, at said Chateaugay, willfully and utterly deserted your libellant, on or about the twenty-first day of February, 1918, which desertion has continued from that date, being more than three years last past.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce be decreed between your libellant and the said Della Giroux.

Dated this first day of May, A. D. 1920.

WILLIAM E. GIROUX

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, Sept. 3, A. D. 1920.

Upon the foregoing libel, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of October next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.

Attest,
WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully I, the undersigned, William E. Giroux, of Lowell, in said County, that he was lawfully married to Della Giroux, now of Chateaugay in the State of New York, at Chateaugay in said State of New York, the seventeenth day of September, A. D. 1919, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Della Giroux lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Lynn, Massachusetts, and at Lowell, Massachusetts, and at Chateaugay, that your libellant prays that a divorce be decreed between your libellant and the said Della Giroux, being wholly regardless of the same, at said Chateaugay, willfully and utterly deserted your libellant, on or about the twenty-first day of February, 1918, which desertion has continued from that date, being more than three years last past.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce be decreed between your libellant and the said Della Giroux.

Dated this first day of May, A. D. 1920.

WILLIAM E. GIROUX

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS—Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, Sept. 3, A. D. 1920.

Upon the foregoing libel, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of October next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in The Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.

Attest,
WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

Official Report of Rescue of 38 Officers and Men of Submarine S-5

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—A sailor's white undershirt, pushed through a hole drilled in the hull of the sunken submarine S-5, led to the rescue of the 38 officers and men aboard, it was revealed today in an official report of the accident.

After hours beneath the ocean with the oxygen exhausted, the crew learned that the stern of their ship was above water. This supplied a ray of hope, and working as they never worked before, they gouged a small hole through the iron hull. To do this, they climbed up the side of the ship standing at an angle of about 60 degrees.

Through this hole they thrust a

WATCH FOR EX-CONVICTS BELOW "DEAD LINE"

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—If any of 20,000 men who have had prison records at Sing Sing within the last 25 years appears in New York's financial district below the famous police "dead line" their actions are likely to be scrutinized by two of their old prison attendants, whose retirement from the institution was announced today.

Martin J. Deely and Frederick Dornier, the two former attendants, who are said to be able to "spot" any face among the 20,000, have been employed by two financial houses to be on the lookout for any of their old prison acquaintances.

RED AGENTS BUSY IN ANATOLIA

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 2. (By Associated Press.)—Large numbers of Turkish Bolshevik agents have begun an intensive campaign of propaganda in Anatolia under the control of leaders supporting the Turkish nationalist government. They are lecturing in the streets and distributing pamphlets defining the 23 principles of Bolshevism, one of which is that assassins should own the land.

A club has been organized at Trebizond, the main members being given badges bearing the hammer and anvil, while the women members are wearing red ribbons pinned to their veils. The police in this city are arresting dozens of agents who are supplied with pamphlets and money.

BROOKLYN CAR BARN BURNED

200 Sleeping Strike-Breakers
Imperilled By Incendiary
Fire

Blaze Caused $10,000 Loss
—Conflicting Reports on Strike Situation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Conflicting claims regarding Brooklyn's Transit tieup were made today by officials of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. and its striking employees who quit work last Sunday to enforce demands for a 50 per cent wage increase and recognition of the closed shop.

While Receiver Lindley M. Garrison declared more than 800 men had resumed work, Louis M. Fridiger, attorney for the union, claimed the strikers' forces were virtually intact.

Meanwhile traffic on the subway, elevated and surface lines continue to improve.

Two hundred sleeping strike-breakers in the Ridgewood depot of the B.R.T., were imperilled early today by fire of supposedly incendiary origin which entailed a loss of $10,000. Two trolleys were destroyed and three others badly damaged. The strike breakers who were awakened soon after the fire was discovered assisted in saving many cars.

Many surface cars were operated today without the heavy wire netting which had been placed on some of them for protection of crews.

Six additional surface lines, making a total of 27, were in use. Officials announced that 200 more strikers had returned to work.

W. D. Mahon, international president of the union, is expected here from Detroit Monday.

SHOWS PART WOMEN WILL TAKE IN PRIMARY

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The part which women will take in the state primaries of next Tuesday, the first Massachusetts election in which they have had a vote, was indicated today by a canvass of registration figures made by the Associated Press. These figures, which represent the registration in the 38 cities of the state, show that out of an aggregate of 513,841 registered voters, 150,370 are women. If this proportion is maintained among the towns of the state, many of which will still be holding registration today, one woman will go to the polls for every three or four men.

GEN. WRANGEL STARTS BIG COUNTER DRIVE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 2.—(By Associated Press.) General Wrangel, head of the south Russian anti-Bolshevik government, has launched a successful counter offensive in the regions of Orlovsk and Melitopol, north of the Sea of Azov, according to despatches received here. The Soviet forces have been driven out of Novo Alexienna.

NEW KIND OF RENT PROFITEER

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—Police here today were on the lookout for a new kind of rent profiteer—the kind who accepts deposits but has nothing to rent. Scores of anxious would-be tenants complained to authorities that they had made deposits, ranging from $10 to $20 to a man who strutted around in completed apartment buildings posing as the landlord.

ANOTHER HONOR FOR RUTH

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—"Babe" Ruth cracked out his 45th home run of the season today in the third inning of the game against Boston. There was no one on base. Jones was on the mound for Boston.

MRS. MACSWINEY SENDS CABLE TO PRES. WILSON

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Terence MacSwiney has cabled President Wilson an appeal in behalf of her husband, the lord mayor of Cork, who is in a critical condition in prison, as a result of a hunger strike which began August 12.

Mrs. MacSwiney asks President Wilson to use his "influence with the English government to prevent the perpetration of an outrage on civilization."

Mrs. MacSwiney was apparently weaker this morning, and the prison doctors expressed great alarm. They advised his relatives that nobody should converse with him today.

The lord mayor spent a bad night, and this morning was pale and suffering from complete exhaustion. He was able to speak only in gasps, his brow was heavily wrinkled and his face was considerably more shrunken. He was still conscious.

Sean MacSwiney, his brother, remained with him during the night, and other members of the family maintained a constant watch today.

Annie MacSwiney, the lord mayor's sister, on leaving Brixton jail at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon, said her brother was at his very lowest.

Protest From Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—James T. Moriarty, president of the city council, as acting mayor of the city, today sent to Premier Lloyd George of England, the following cablegram, regarding the hunger strike of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork:

"Overwhelming sentiment among citizens of Boston that Mayor MacSwiney's death would be crime against civilization, and repudiation of every principle for which great world war was fought."

Coroners' Inquests Prohibited

Lively Contests in Represen- tative Districts—Suffrage Is the Big Feature

Vote of Women an Un- known Factor—7000 En- titled to Vote Here

Preceded by one of the quietest campaigns in years, as far as local contests are concerned, the 1920 state primaries will be held next Tuesday when voters will nominate candidates for state and county offices to be voted upon at the election in November.

The polls in Lowell will open promptly at 12 o'clock noon and will close at 9 p. m. Results will not be known until nearly midnight in Lowell and it will be well into the morning before statewide contests will have been decided.

A variety of reasons are given for the quietude of campaigners and voters this year. One of them is, that

AMERICAN CONSUMERS TO GET GERMAN DYES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—An arrangement has been completed by which American consumers of dye-stuffs may purchase supplies from the stocks of the German product which have been set apart under the Versailles peace treaty as a part of the reparation to be made to the allied powers by Germany.

The Textile Alliance, Inc., a non-profit taking organization created by dye consumers according to an announcement today by the war trade board section of the state department, will be the mechanism through which the dyes will be distributed. Only those dyes will be obtained which are not being produced in the United States or for which suitable and reasonably priced substitutes are not manufactured domestically.

WOMEN PARTICIPATE IN TOWN MEETING

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 4.—A special town meeting in East Longmeadow to act on appropriations, provided the first opportunity in this section of the country for women to exercise their newly won right to equal suffrage. They held the balance of power in the meeting in which the board of selectmen were defeated in a read appropriations program.

STRIKERS USE MACHINE GUNS

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The industrial situation in Milan has become more serious, according to Rome despatches to the Exchange Telegraph. Strikers have placed machine guns on the roofs of several factories in Milan and have organized a workers' militia to resist intervention by troops, the despatches say.

WOMEN CLASH AT POLLS

Disorders at Women's Pri- mary Furnishes Amuse- ment For Male Politicians

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 4.—Two clashes at the polls at the republican women's county primary furnished amusement for male politicians here today.

A woman whose home was being used for balloting telephoned republican headquarters that one of the candidates was sitting beside the ballot box.

"I told her she would have to get out but she said she wouldn't go. What shall I do?" she asked.

"Get a piece of gaspipe and run her out," suggested the man at republican headquarters.

An hour later the polls-keeper called again, saying the candidate was back with a yard full of negro women whom she brought to vote for her.

Republican headquarters had no remedy for the situation. Finally the negro women were permitted to vote, but returns showed the troublesome candidate had been defeated.

Members of the republican women's county committee were selected at the primary yesterday.

$250,000 WORTH OF WHISKEY SEIZED

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Whiskey valued at approximately $250,000, was seized during the past week while it was being illegally transported through New England, according to Federal Prohibition Agent William J. McCarthy. The seized liquor was described as "New York cut" and was said to have been confiscated principally while being hauled through Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

HEAVY WAGES LAID ON RACE OF LINERS

CHEERBOURG, Spt. 4.—The Cupard liner Aquitania which left New York on Aug. 23 arrived here yesterday making the voyage in five days, 17 hours and 27 minutes. The record for the eastern trip from New York to this port is five days and 16 hours, made by the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse in January, 1900.

The White Star liner Olympic, which left New York the same time as the Aquitania was expected to arrive here today. Passengers on the two ships considered the voyage a race and heavy wagers were laid. Prince Carol of Rumania backed the Aquitania.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

Parade Will Be Feature of Lowell's Observance — Mass Meeting on Common

Lowell's celebration of Labor day, 1920, on Monday, will be marked by a parade, sports of various kinds and a band concert and appropriate exercises on the South common in the evening. Other holiday attractions will appeal to individuals as in the past, principally traveling and a week-end at the shore or in the country.

Already, in fact, the city's population is on the move and today, there is a heavy and sustained exodus of pleasure seekers.

Monday's observance will officially begin with the start of the parade of union trades and craftsmen from the South common at 10 a. m. Led by Francis A. Warnock, president of the Trades & Labor council, as chief marshal, the line of march will carry the men and women through Central street and Merrimack square, across the river into Centralville as far as Sixth street, where it will counter-march and return to Merrimack street at City hall, it will pass in review before Mayor Perry D. Thompson and members of the council, and later before the chief marshal and staff.

The chief marshal today was not able to estimate the number of men and women who will be in line. Each unit is looking out for its own representation and will march as many as possible. Distinctive uniforms will be worn and each union has been notified to name its own parade officers.

That the parade will not be as long as in recent years, there is no doubt, due to the fact that several tradesmen, such as the leather workers and shoe workers, are no longer affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Also many mill operatives are out of town during the shut-down of two of the city's largest corporations.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a semi-professional baseball game will be staged on the South common, probably between the South Ends and Gillespie. If it is not possible to bring these two teams together, other fast organizations will be substituted.

The evening exercises will commence at 8 o'clock. The speakers will include Mayor Thompson, Rev. D. J. Keleher, Ph. D., pastor of St. Peter's church and James T. Moriarty, president of the Boston city council and acting-mayor at the present time. A band concert will continue until 10 o'clock.

JACKSON TAKES BURRELL'S PLACE

Former Chairman of N. E.
Division of Red Cross
Named For Office

Two Boston Newspapermen Named For Boxing Commission

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Gov. Coolidge today appointed James Jackson of Westwood, former chairman of the New England division of the American Red Cross, as state treasurer to succeed Fred J. Burrell, who resigned the office while under investigation. Pending confirmation of the new appointee, and his qualification, the governor named Secretary of State A. P. Langtry, former Atty. Gen. Bruce Wymann and John R. Macomber of this city, as a committee to take charge of the affairs of the treasurer's office.

The council took no action on the nomination of Mr. Jackson and the appointment went over to the next regular meeting of the council next Wednesday for confirmation.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Gov. Coolidge today named Carl A. Barrett and Eugene Buckley, local newspaper men, as members of the new state boxing commission of which Col. A. F. Foote, commissioner of public safety, is chairman. Their names were submitted to the executive council this afternoon, and it was expected that the commission would organize and consider whether it should sanction boxing matches already scheduled to be held Labor day at Lawrence, Brockton and elsewhere.

The governor's council adjourned without confirming the appointments. Gov. Coolidge having made no request for suspension of rules. As a result, it appeared there was no authority for holding the bouts scheduled for Labor day.

Burrell Quits Office

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The resignation of State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell, which was announced last night, and speculation as to whom Governor Coolidge would appoint as his successor, were the principal topics of discussion in political circles here today. Burrell, who was elected on the republican ticket last November, resigned as a result of a disturbance in the party that he followed repeated allegations that he had solicited advertising from banks for an agency which he conducted.

In announcing his resignation, the state treasurer said: "I do so not because I did any wrong, but the pain and anguish of mind that has come to my aged mother and the members of my family by the unwarranted attacks upon me has grieved me and rather than cause them any further pain, I am sacrificing myself."

He requested his successors

TO TEACH ELOCUTION AT HIGH SCHOOL

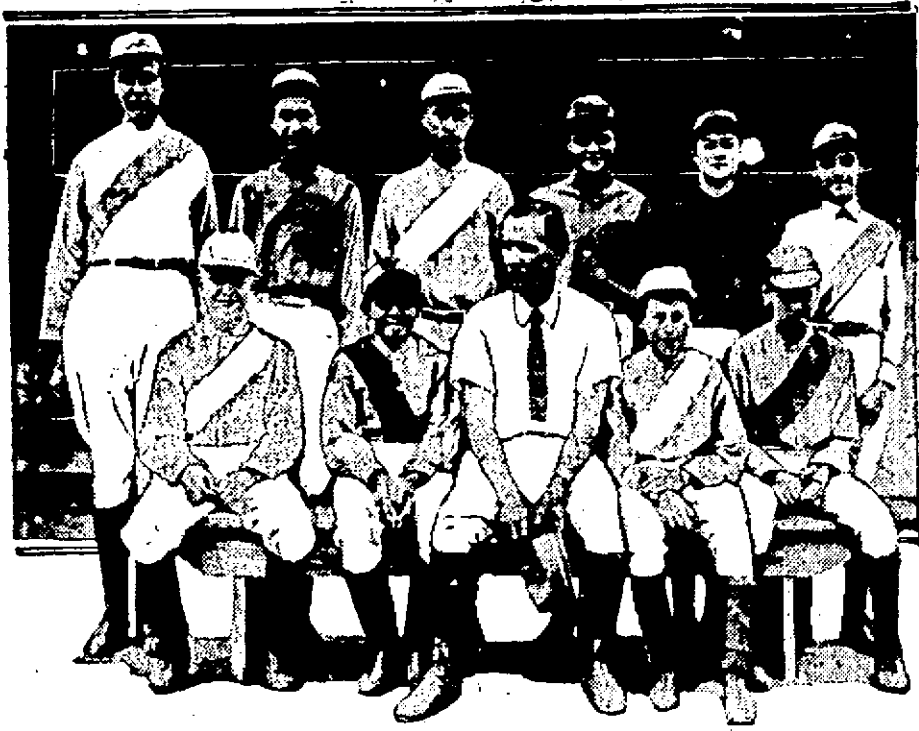

With the re-opening of the high school classes on September 28, Miss Anna Lee Maguire, class of 1916, Lowell high school, a graduate of the Emerson College of Oratory, Boston, class of 1920, will take up her duties as a teacher in elocution. Miss Maguire was graduated from Emerson college last May with the degree of Bachelor of Literary Interpretation and received the appointment to the high school staff of teachers at the July meeting of the school board. Her selection at that time was not made public by the board. In her new position she will act as an assistant to Miss Mary C. Joyce, head of the elocution department.

With new college rulings requiring certification in elocution for entrance effective for the first time this year, study in that department in the high school will be made much more extensive and it was to aid in this work Miss Maguire was appointed. Miss Maguire was prominently connected with dramatic and debating activities during her attendance at the high school.

WORLD'S TITLE THEIR GOAL.

THESE YOUNG SONS OF WEALTHY PLANTERS, BANKERS AND BUSINESS MEN OF THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS ARE BEING TRAINED TO CAPTURE THE POLO TITLE FOR AMERICA IN 1925

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 2.—Hawaii wants to lead the world in polo by having four island men on the American team that plays England for the title in 1925 even as Hawaii leads the world in swimming.

That is the goal which Coach Peter Hannon of the Hawaii Polo and Racing association had in mind when five years ago he took hold of 10 youngsters, not one of whom had then reached his teens and began training them. Recently those young riders and wielders of the mallet trimmed an Army polo team here, and did it so thoroughly that their ability to make the American team in 1925 and bring the world championship in that line to Hawaii is unquestioned any longer.

In the past, polo players the world over have developed in hit-or-miss fashion. This is the first time in the history of the game that an effort has been made to develop a team from its youth. In 1925 all the youngsters in the team will be in the neighborhood of 20 years old, and with ten years of polo training behind them they should certainly be fit to trim the world. Even today they are declared the greatest boy polo team in the world. They are all sons of Hawaiian planters.

FALL ACTIVITIES AT THE Y. W. C. A.

With the coming of September and the return of people to the city from their vacation, activities for the fall will very soon be underway at the local Y.W.C.A. Extensive programs are planned in the social and physical departments. The "Y" cafeteria will open on Tuesday, Sept. 7 under the direction of Miss Edith Spencer, a graduate of New York state college for teachers and experienced in institutional work in various organizations and also as the director of the cafeteria in the large Y.W.C.A. association in Watertown, N. Y. Miss Spencer will remain permanently in this city in connection with her new duties.

With the opening of the department of physical training will come the offering of classes in gymnastics and aesthetic dancing for all applicants and of other recreational opportunities, not heretofore presented. The director of the physical department will take charge on the 15th of this month at which time activities will practically begin.

This work will be in charge of Miss Charlotte Northrup, a graduate of Sargent's school in Boston of wide experience in her line of work, having been physical director in Germantown, Penn., and for three years the physical director in the "Y" in Albany, N. Y. Announcement of the complete schedule will be made upon her arrival.

INCREASED EFFICIENCY

More Than 6,800,000 Men Add to Production By Use of Automobiles

More than 6,800,000 men added 57 per cent. to their productive efficiency during the past year. More than 2,300,000 families have found it possible to live in the suburbs or otherwise improve their home surroundings. A working force equivalent to 1,500,000 laborers is being applied to farming. Such is the creative effectiveness of the passenger car, as reported in replies to thousands of cards sent to car owners.

This questionnaire, conducted by the national automobile chamber of commerce, went to automobile license holders taken at random from the registration lists of ten widely diverse states: California, Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Texas, Virginia and Wyoming. The card asked the owner's occupation, the annual mileage, the amount of mileage used for business and for recreation, the amount used to supplement or in lieu of trolley or rail connection. It asked to what extent the passenger car increased the owner's business, and whether it affected his housing problem or living conditions. The present figures are compiled from answers to the first 10,000 cards of this survey which is being further extended until information on the uses of cars by all classes of owners is fully determined.

Ninety per cent. of the owners reported that they used their cars more or less for business, while ten per cent. stated that their automobiles were for recreation use only. The average increased efficiency of the car owner is 56.7 per cent. A number report but small gain in productivity, but this is heavily overbalanced by the testimony of the farmers who have added nearly 70 per cent. to their labor effectiveness, and by the doctors and salesmen whose business is doubled, tripled and in some cases quadrupled through use of the car.

The largest gain in productivity has been in farm life. There are 2,367,000 farmers owning cars. The answers from farmers reported 68 per cent. increase in productivity of the owner or an addition equivalent to 1,600,000 hired men.

The use of the passenger car, accordingly, has meant a net gain to industry of 3,000,000 men. There are more than 7,000,000 automobile owners in the country, each increasing his efficiency 56.7 per cent. through the use of the car, making an addition to the business productivity of the country in excess of 3,900,000 workers. As there are between 800,000 and 900,000 men manufacturing and selling passenger cars, parts and accessories, there remains a net gain of more than 3,000,000 men. If one were to add the productive efficiency of the 750,000 motor trucks now in use a still greater gain would be shown.

First Annual Open Golf Tournament of the Season at Country Club Today

The Vesper Country club held its first annual open golf tournament of the season today, with a good representation of golfers present from out of town clubs to compete against the local amateurs. The entry list has been robbed of considerable class by the absence of such players as Guilford, Guilford, Nelson and others, who are in New York for the national amateur open event, but such fact will work to the advantage of many golfers a trifle lower in rating, who, time after time are shut out of prizes simply by the superior work of the stars above mentioned. A buffet luncheon will be served at the club house and everything done for the entertainment of guests.

FORD CONTRACT

The many friends of the Pitts' Motor Sales will be glad to know that with the signing of a new contract with the Ford Motor company, of Detroit for the sale of Ford cars, trucks and Fordson tractors, the Pitts' concern will, in the year to come, extend the same efficient service and satisfaction employed by them in years past.

Mention is made that the style of the car has in no way been changed, the price remains the same and the duties performed by this wonderful car will remain as before.

Last winter the Ford kept going every day through the snow and the people that owned and operated them never worried for a minute about losing time through motor trouble.

Warning is sent out by the Pitts

Motor Sales to insure those buyers from being disappointed to buy early for early orders mean early deliveries as it is impossible for us to obtain all the cars as ordered. Some that hesitate will sure remain without their Fords.

Closed cars, although more plentiful than last year, will again—when they are most in demand—be short and it is a wise buyer that immediately places his order for this model of car.

The time payment plan employed by the Pitts Motor Sales will bear investigation. His plan allows all to own a Ford by paying a small amount each month and you have the privilege of using the car while it is being paid for.

Makers of electric clothes-washers estimate that 700,000 machines will be made in this country this year.

Col. Logan Weds Miss Cecelia Mullen

WALTHAM, Sept. 4.—Miss Cecelia Frances Mullen of this city was married today to Col. Edward L. Logan, commander of the 101st infantry regiment overseas, past state commander of the American Legion, and judge of the South Boston district court. The wedding took place at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, in the presence of several hundred guests, including Governor Coolidge and associates of Col. Logan in the Yankee division.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Leo Logan of Campello, a brother of the groom and a nuptial high mass was celebrated by three former chaplains of the Yankee division.

Col. and Mrs. Logan will spend their honeymoon in France revisiting the battlefields on which the 101st regiment fought.

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—Larceny of $10,000 worth of furs, which had been stripped from manikens in the windows of Gilchrist Co.'s department store, was charged today against four men. It was alleged that Julian Bernice and James Calhoun, window dressers, took the furs from the figures and placed them in boxes, which were called for by or delivered to James Moore and James F. Walsh. The company officials said the furs had been going on for a week.

Stage All Set For Primaries

Continued

The primaries are being held two weeks earlier than usual and many people have not yet got over their vacation spirit of "forget-everything," including politics. Another factor is the approach of the presidential election with its overshadowing interest.

Surge the Feature

The one outstanding feature of the primaries is the fact that it will give Lowell women their first opportunity to exercise the right of full suffrage, recently conferred upon them. How many will take advantage of the opportunity is a question—not even the election commissioners will make predictions. About 7000 women are entitled to vote here and the total voting strength of the city is now in the neighborhood of 25,000. If 15,000 Lowell voters visit the polls next Tuesday, the most generous estimates of those in touch with the political situation will be realized.

It is generally believed that the newly enfranchised women voters will not show their greatest strength until the local election season in November and December. Up to now, their only interest has been in school committee candidates and naturally they will not at once become deeply absorbed in state matters although various women's organizations are using every effort to have women vote at every opportunity.

Many women who would otherwise be eager to vote are a bit bashful about going to the polls, especially if they have not been voting for school board candidates. To such women, assurance may be given right now that the precinct officers will use every means in their power to assist them in casting their ballot in a proper manner. Instructions have been given by the election commissioners to this effect and all women voters of Lowell may be certain of receiving the utmost courtesy when they enter the booth.

The first thing for the prospective voter to do is to ascertain just where her voting booth is located. This can be found by inquiry at the office of the election commissioners. Upon entering the booth the voter will give her name and address and then declare whether she wants a democratic or republican ballot. Upon receiving an enclosed booth where she will mark it and then present it to the official at the ballot machine when she has finished. That's all there is to it.

List of Candidates

For the general information of both men and women voters The Sun publishes a complete list of democratic and republican candidates just as they will appear on the ballots Tuesday. The list, with the exception of can-

Signer of the Rights

Channing H. Cox, present lieutenant governor, is certain of the republican nomination for governor as he is unopposed. For the democratic nomination Richard H. Long and Senator John J. Walsh are putting up an interesting battle. Mr. Long has been the nominee on two occasions. He was beaten last year, he claims, as a result of misunderstanding and misrepresentation. He says he is no quitter and is out to get it again this year. This is Mr. Walsh's first endeavor. Both men are good campaigners with the advantage of experience giving Mr. Long a little more headway than his opponent.

The real fight in the republican arena as far as the higher offices are concerned, is for lieutenant governor where four aspirants are in the field. Charles L. Burrill, former state treasurer; Alvan T. Fuller, former congressman; Albert P. Langtry, present secretary of the commonwealth, and Joseph E. Warner, speaker of the house of representatives, are all in the field putting up a stiff fight.

Mr. Langtry's withdrawal from the secretaryship fight has brought a crop of new aspirants. James W. Bean of Cambridge; Frederic W. Cook of Somerville; Samuel W. George of Haverhill; James G. Harris of Medford, and Russell A. Wood of Cambridge are the aspirants.

The democrats have no contests for lieutenant governor at the primaries. Michael A. O'Leary of the democratic state committee is unopposed. For secretary, Charles H. McGue of Lynn, who was a candidate last year, again seeks the nomination.

Patrick O'Hearn of Boston, is the democratic candidate for treasurer and owing to the confusion and general dissatisfaction in the republican ranks, he is expected to poll a very large vote from all parts of the state. His real fight, of course, will come at the election but the same conditions will undoubtedly hold true at that time.

The other higher state offices are being sought by well known candidates, all of whom have been before the voters in the past and whose records are well known to the public.

The Fifth District

The fifth congressional district gives indications of being more interesting than was expected earlier in the season. Congressman John Jacob Rogers, the present incumbent, is of course back in the field but with more opposition than has been the case in former years. Jackson Palmer of this city, world war veteran and son of a former mayor of Lowell, is said to be desirous of having his name written in on the ballot for the republican nomination. On the democratic side, Mr. Rogers will be opposed by Bernard J. Golden of Woburn who is unopposed for the nomination.

The Councilship Fight

Lowell men credited with keeping tabs on the way political affairs are blowing, seem confident that Hon. Charles Sumner Smith will win the republican nomination for councillor in the sixth district. While he is not so very well known here he has quite a local following, and if his admirers have the right dope, he will win the nomination hands down. "He's after a job that needs a big man, and he can fill the bill admirably," is the way one Lowell republican puts it. Smith is a Lincoln man. He was born in Lincoln and was educated in the public schools of Lincoln and Phillips Andover academy. He is owner and manager of one of the biggest farms in Middlesex county and has other extensive business interests, including the presidency of the Old Dominion company and the Arizona Commercial Mining company. He is chairman of the Abington Textile Machinery trustees. For three years he has represented the fifth Middlesex district in the senate and his efficiency in any capacity, his friends say, has never been questioned. During his term in the senate he was chairman of the committee on fisheries and game, mercantile affairs and metropolitan affairs.

Mr. Smith, however, won't have the field all to himself. Smith J. Adams of Lowell is counting on strong support from this end of the district and reports having received great encouragement, while former Representative Fred O. Lewis is making a vigorous canvass and expects strong backing from Lowell republicans. Edward W. Berry of Winchelsea and Edward B. Eames of Reading are putting up a lively fight. The result will be most interesting. The winner is sure of election as there are no democratic aspirants.

Senatorial Campaign

Senator Gardner W. Pearson is back in the ring seeking re-nomination to the senate from the seventh district. He is opposed this year by Dr. Maurice Buck of Billerica who expects to take away a good portion of the general's support, at least, from the towns of the district. There are no democratic candidates.

In the eighth district E. Gaston Campbell and Frank H. Putnam, the present senators, are fighting it out for the nomination. Mr. Campbell's friends are working hard but Senator Putnam's supporters are confident that their man cannot be ousted. Hon. John T. Sparks, who came within a few votes of defeating Mr. Putnam at the state election last year, is again back in the field, unopposed for the democratic nomination.

The Representative Fight

The representative fight will furnish the chief interest locally. In the 14th district, strongly democratic, the republicans have put forward two candidates, John H. Barrett and Harry W. Leavitt, both of whom will be nominated.

On the democratic side, Owen E. Brennan and Charles H. Slower, the present incumbents are putting up a stiff fight but effective campaigns and expect to be returned to their seats. However, they are opposed this year by several strong candidates, notably Patrick A. Hayes, well known local attorney, who lost out by

Ads, and Record

The following open letter has been addressed to Edward B. Eames of Reading, one of the candidates for the governor's council in this district, by Frederick H. Kirwin of Waltham. Mr. Kirwin is one of the active supporters of Charles Sumner Smith of Lincoln, an aspirant for the same office.

Reading, Mass.

I have noticed in different papers published in the sixth councillor district that you are advertising yourself as a farmer and a business man; also that you have done much in the legislature to further labor legislation and the bonus to the service men.

Is it a fact that you are not, and have not been for a great many years, a farmer?

Is it a fact that on labor legislation coming before the legislature during your terms of service, you voted on both sides?

Is it a fact that in 1918 you voted to increase your travel allowance, and in 1919 voted to increase your own salary $500 per annum, and again voted to pass this bill after it had been voted by the governor?

Is it a fact that after these votes, when you tried to be returned to the senate from your district, you were defeated for the nomination?

Is it a fact that you have been a candidate three times for senator in your town, and defeated each time?

Is it a fact that the bonus bill for soldiers, for which you claim credit, was passed unanimously by the senate, and that neither did you introduce it nor was it referred to any committee of which you were a member?

Is it a fact that you consider it legitimate to claim credit for the success of a measure which practically no one opposed?

I have no objection to a man advertising all that he is, but I do object to a man advertising what he is not.

ANOTHER ARREST

Federal Prohibition Officer John O'Dea, accompanied by Local Officers P. J. Clark and Winn, of the liquor squad, raided the home of Cyren DeLisle, a barber in Wachusett street, last night, shortly after 10 o'clock, and booked him at the station on a charge of violating the national prohibition laws. DeLisle was held shortly after his arrest. The officers claim to have found a still in operation and a few quarts of moonshine in the house.

COMMUNITY CLUB ALLEYS

The bowling alleys at the Community club in Dutton street will open next Tuesday for the coming fall and winter season. The Community club and the American Legion and other veteran associations will be represented by bowling teams in a fast league this fall.

DECLARED DESERTER

Richard F. Lannan, giving his address as 27 Tyler street, Lowell, has been declared a deserter from the U.S. Army, New York navy yard, according to announcement received today by Mayor Thompson.

only a narrow margin last year when he made his debut in the political field. Mr. Hayes is a self-made young man who has risen wholly by his own merits. His friends are confident of his success. Frank McMahon, former representative, is back in the fight seeking to regain his seat, while Cornelius Desmond also wants the nomination. Both men are working hard.

In the 15th district, Messrs. Berard Achin and Jewett seek to retain their places at the state house. Clinton P. Tuttle has waged a strong campaign on the issue that he is the only candidate from Ward 8 and that that ward should have representation at the state house. William D. Blanchard also aspires for nomination in this district.

The "Heavenly Twins"

By the way, do you realize that Messrs. Achin and Jewett are rounding out ten years of companionship in the political arena? It's a fact that they have been together for just a decade and now confidently predict raising the record from 10 to 12 years. Incidentally the "twins" claim that they have broken all precedents in Massachusetts for such continual service together.

The first year that Jewett and Achin became actively interested in politics found them members of the old city council and chairmen of committees. For the past nine years they have represented the 15th Middlesex district in the lower house of the legislature and today they are both again committee chairmen. Representative Achin is chairman of the committee on rules and federal regulations, while his running mate heads the committees on cities and railroads. The rival candidates think these gentlemen should be retired for new men.

The 16th District

In the 16th district the democrats have a three-cornered fight on the nomination which in this district means election. Representative Thomas J. Corbett, the present incumbent, is being opposed by Dennis J. Donohue and Paul J. McCaffrey. Mr. Corbett's friends have little doubt of the outcome, although they are avoiding the danger of being over-confident. He bases his claim for consideration on his experience, faithful service and interest in the city's charter problem. He has circulated the district, while his opponents have confined their efforts to personal solicitation. It has been a quiet campaign for Wards 4 and 5.

New Order System

That new system of arranging names of candidate on ballots according to the time of filing nomination papers rather than alphabetically, as contemplated in a bill which is to come before the next legislature, meets with the approval of local election commissioners as a much fairer method than the one now employed.

Under the new system, the candidate who first files his nomination papers, heads the ballot regardless of what letter his name begins with. The new system is designed to prevent last-minute filing of papers and also to prevent perennial candidates from securing the advantages of top-position on the ballot year after year simply because their names begin with A or B.

Many People Report Big Gains In Weight

Detroit Man Gains 15 Pounds Taking Tanlac

Merchant Says Taking Tanlac Was the Wisest Thing He Ever Did

"Honestly, I have picked up so much I can't button my clothes, and before I took Tanlac they were so loose I could hardly keep them on," was the characteristic statement made by Elton Chatterbox, the hardware dealer of 1735 First Jefferson avenue, Detroit, Mich., recently.

"When I first began taking Tanlac," Mr. Chatterbox continued, "I was just about down and out as the result of two years' suffering from catarrh and stomach trouble, and my wife and I had decided I had better go to bed and let her take over my business. I had absolutely no appetite and there were very few things I could eat at all. I could eat no meats or vegetables, and what I ate felt like knots in my stomach and caused me great pain. I was constantly coughing off phlegm and mucus that collected in my throat, and I could hardly sleep at night. I tried all kinds of treatments and medicines, and was finally told nothing more could be done for me. I just felt miserable all the time. Medicine just seemed to have no effect in my case, and I lost weight and kept going down."

"About the wisest thing I ever did was to get Tanlac, for now I feel like I had been made all over into a new man. My suffering is all over. I eat just anything I want—and feel good afterwards. I have gained all of 15 pounds, maybe more, and am as active as I ever was. My catarrh and nervousness are gone, and I sleep every night like a child. Tanlac will never be out of my house, and I feel that the people of Detroit are fortunate to be able to get such a valuable medicine." Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Greens drug store.

Tennessee Dairy Farmer Gains 30 Pounds Taking It

Everybody in Columbia, Tenn., knows F. G. McGavock, who owns and operates a large dairy business in that city.

"If ever there was a believer in Tanlac," says H. M. Smiser, the well-known Columbia, Tenn., druggist, "it is Mr. McGavock, as he talks about it all the time. He has had a bad stomach trouble, constipation, and pains in his side and back. At times the pains took the form of torture and I was twice examined and each time I was told to keep on taking Tanlac and that an operation would be my only hope."

"I had made all preparations for the operation and called in my sister to tell her good-bye, as I did not know whether I would live to see her again or not. My sister begged and pleaded with me not to allow them to cut on me, and told me to wait and try a good tonic for a while. The next day as I returned from the consultation room I thought of what she said, and as I had heard so much about Tanlac, I decided to try it and got a bottle. "I never returned to the doctor, but just kept taking the Tanlac. Right from the start I began to feel better. The medicine seemed to take hold right away."

"I was so happy over the wonderful improvement in my condition that I sent for my neighbors to tell them how much better I felt. I sent for another bottle of Tanlac, and have just finished taking my third bottle, and feel as if I have been made all over again into a new man."

Texas Merchant Has Gained 34 Pounds

Another remarkable case was that of John M. Crabtree, a general merchant, at Five-Mile Station A, Dallas, Texas. "I have actually gained thirty-four pounds in three bottles of Tanlac, and I know what it is to enjoy good health after suffering for twenty years," said Mr. Crabtree.

"Suffering with catarrh of the stomach and indigestion for twenty years, and for eighteen months before I started taking Tanlac I had to live almost entirely on cereals. I spent nearly all of one whole year in bed and was unable to do anything at all, and I fell off in weight to 115 pounds."

"After using my third bottle of Tanlac, I found I had increased in weight from 115 pounds to 149 pounds, making an actual gain of thirty-four pounds—all my troubles were gone and I was feeling like another man." Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Greens drug store.

Indiana Woman Has Gained 20 Pounds

"I've not only gained twenty pounds since I began taking Tanlac but, for the first time in ten years, I can sit down at the table and eat anything I want without any suffering afterwards," declared Mrs. Emma McNabney of 209 South Oriental street, Indianapolis, Ind.

"Tanlac has certainly been a blessing to me and I can't begin to tell how thankful I am for it."

Seattle Woman Weighed But 90 Lbs.

"When my wife began taking Tanlac she only weighed 90 pounds and she now weighs 135, giving her an actual gain of 45 pounds," said Clarence E. Mallin, the well-known contractor, living at 515 West Fifty-first street, Seattle, Wash.

"Not only have I been relieved of rheumatism and stomach trouble, but I have also gained 30 pounds in weight, and these are my reasons for thinking so well of Tanlac," said Mrs. M. E. Hoyle of 1231 Pennsylvania avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Thousands of Thin, Frail People Are Restored to Health and Gain Rapidly in Weight by Taking Tanlac.

One of the most noteworthy features in connection with the introduction of Tanlac, and the one that stands out more prominently than any other, perhaps, is the very large number of well-known men and women from all parts of the country who have recently reported an astonishing and rapid increase in weight as a result of its use.

When so many well-known people of unquestioned integrity make statements after statement, each corroborating the other, the truth of such statements can no longer be doubted.

Thousands have testified that this famous medicine has completely restored them to health and strength, after every other medicine and the most skilled medical treatment have failed.

One of the most remarkable cases on record is that of Mrs. Charles Peden of Huntsville, Ala., whose statement appears below. Mrs. Peden, according to her own signed statement, gained seven (7) pounds in only a few weeks' time and her case has created a widespread interest over the entire country. She is reported to have received over eight hundred (800) letters regarding her statement since publication.

Hundreds of others almost as remarkable have already been received, several of which are also published below.

Mrs. Peden Has Gained 27 Lbs.

Was Twice Examined and Told Operation Would Be Her Only Hope

I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac and have gained twenty-seven pounds," was the truly remarkable statement made by Mrs. Charles Peden, residing at 55 Mill street, Huntsville, Ala.

"I commenced taking Tanlac," she continued, "only weighed ninety-eight (98) pounds; now I weigh 125 pounds, and never felt better in my life. For years I have suffered from a bad form of stomach trouble, constipation, and pains in my side and back. At times the pains took the form of torture and I was twice examined and each time I was told to keep on taking Tanlac and that an operation would be my only hope."

"I had made all preparations for the operation and called in my sister to tell her good-bye, as I did not know whether I would live to see her again or not. My sister begged and pleaded with me not to allow them to cut on me, and told me to wait and try a good tonic for a while. The next day as I returned from the consultation room I thought of what she said, and as I had heard so much about Tanlac, I decided to try it and got a bottle. "I never returned to the doctor, but just kept taking the Tanlac. Right from the start I began to feel better. The medicine seemed to take hold right away."

Colorado Man Has Gained 32 Pounds

"The day I started on Tanlac I weighed only 120 pounds. I finished my third bottle weighing 152 pounds—a net gain of 32 pounds, and I doubt if there's a person in Denver who feels better than I do now," said Harry Lilly of 453 Clayton street, Denver, Col., recently.

"Before I took Tanlac," he continued, "I was in such a bad fix with rheumatism, indigestion, kidneys and stomach trouble that life was a burden. The pains across my back were something awful and if I stooped over somebody had to help me straighten up again. I got one or two hours' sleep in two or three nights. I was lucky. I had no appetite, and honestly, for two years I didn't eat as much in two weeks as I do now in two months."

"I started taking Tanlac and by the time I finished my third bottle every bit of the pain had left my back, and I commenced to feel like another man. I still had some rheumatic pains left, so I got another bottle and that cleaned up the rheumatism entirely. Besides gaining 32 pounds, I can sleep as sound as a log at night, and can work hard all day long without being tired." Tanlac is sold in Lowell at Greens drug store.

Maine Woman Gained 29 Pounds

"When I began taking Tanlac three months ago I was a nervous wreck and weighed only one hundred and ten pounds, but I now weigh one hundred and thirty-three pounds and have never felt better in my life," said Mrs. Peden of 1231 Pennsylvania avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

"Five years ago I commenced suffering from what was called a complication of troubles, but as no one seemed to understand my case or knew what to do for me I kept going down hill. I spent some time in a hospital, and under special treatment for two years and did everything possible, but kept getting worse. I have taken six bottles of Tanlac in all and the benefit I have received are remarkable. Tanlac has proven a blessing to me."

San Francisco Man Has Gained 24 Lbs.

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed 110 pounds," said Fred W. Saunders, while in the Owl Drug Store at 710 Market street, San Francisco, recently. "And I now weigh 134 pounds, which gives me an actual gain of 24 pounds in two months' time."

LABOR'S HOLIDAY

It was away back in 1882 that the Knights of Labor held a great public parade on the first Monday of September. It was a great success, and hence there was a spontaneous demand for its repetition so that another great parade was held by the order also on the first Monday of September in 1884.

The great masses of organized workmen and working girls seen in parade so impressed the public that the influence of the toilers was greatly enhanced. They won a degree of public sympathy and respect such as they had never experienced before, all through the educational efforts of a great public outpouring of the toilers in their respective unions, representing practically every trade and industry in the country.

From that day, the demand that the first Monday of September be made a holiday to be known as Labor day, spread rapidly and met a very cordial response in the legislatures of the various states. In Europe, May 1 has been observed as labor's holiday since 1890; but here every state in the union, with the exception of New Mexico and the District of Columbia, observes Labor day on the first Monday in September.

The Labor day celebrations have, at various times, offered an excellent opportunity to impress the public mind in favor of higher wages, shorter hours of labor and other reforms which have already been placed upon the statute books.

The various occasions on which labor turned out in full union strength in public parade, have shown the power of the unions in a most impressive way. The machinists, the joiners, the carpenters, the cotton weavers, the building laborers, the teamsters, the painters and decorators, the barbers, the brotherhood of railroad trainmen and many others, turn out in large numbers and make a splendid showing.

When labor's hosts are seen in such large numbers and such splendid array as presented by the unions representing the numerous crafts on Labor day, they give an impressive demonstration of their numbers and their combined power.

Lowell has had some splendid labor parades and can boast of the most level-headed and conservative unions in the country. At one time, the I.W.O. got a foothold here and caused a great strike; but the local unions had their eyes opened on that occasion, and have since driven the extreme radicals from their ranks. If every city in this state and nation were as free from labor troubles and the influence of radical agitators as is Lowell, we should have widespread industrial peace with the best of feeling between employer and employee, and except in a very small number of instances, employer and employee would be found co-operating in a most cordial way for their mutual benefit.

Labor is better off today than ever before. The textile cities, and Lowell in particular, have taken a great stride onward in making the textile industry one of the best paid in the country. In the past, say fifteen or twenty years ago, the mill city was regarded as a poor place to live by those who merely visited it occasionally, or who knew it from hearsay; but a revolution has taken place in this respect, so that today, the mills pay as high wages, all things considered, as most other industries and even more than many others pay. It was not uncommon to find girls earning $10 per week or upwards in the textile factories, during the war, and even at the present time where business has remained good, this wage is commonly paid to weavers.

Much of the improvement has been due to the labor unions under wise leadership. In attaining these gratifying results, the Labor day parades have been a big factor.

As a result of the efforts of organized labor, sixteen states and Porto Rico have established state funds for insuring at cost, the liability of employers and in seven of the states, the funds are exclusive of the expenses attending commercial insurance competition. Workmen's compensation laws have been enacted in 43 states, Alaska, Porto Rico and Hawaii, and rapid progress has been made toward providing industrial accident insurance at cost through state funds. There is need of improvement in some phases of the workmen's compensation law in cases in which it seems to work an injustice. But on the whole, the law as applied in this state is better than the old system in which the employees had to enter suits for damages and assume responsibility for expensive litigation which in many cases absorbed the entire amount of the verdict. Where no verdict was obtained, of course, the case plunged the plaintiff in debt, making his condition much worse than before.

THE VOTERS' DUTY

As The Sun will not publish on Monday, the state primaries will have opened before another edition appears on the street. We, therefore, take this final opportunity to say a word in reference to the duty of voters in selecting the best candidates seeking nomination. In most cases, there are several candidates seeking the nomination for each of the principal offices. It is the duty of the voters, therefore, to consider well the qualifications of each and be guided by these alone, rather than any other influence.

For the first time, a great many women voters will appear at the primaries to exercise the franchise in their best judgment. We bespeak better results from the influence of women in politics. The number who will vote at the primaries will be small as compared with the number who will vote for the first time at the polls in November.

We are on the eve of great events in the history of this nation. The sweeping changes that have taken place within the past two years may be taken as an indication of the rapidity with which established customs are swept away and a new order of things established.

Momentous problems of reconstruction are to be settled, not only in congress but in the state legislatures. The only guarantee we can have that these questions will be settled right, is to choose honest, competent and reliable men for every public office. The great bulk of the voters were not drafted for war; but they are drafted to exercise their share of the sovereignty in the choice of public servants. The man who votes for an unfit candidate for any office is untrue to his government and he becomes responsible for the consequences of his acts. There would be no corrupt or faithless officials if the people did not select them in preference to the honest, capable and patriotic—a crime against the state.

THE IRISH WARFARE

There is no improvement in the disturbed conditions in Ireland and no apparent move on either side to reach an understanding. In Ulster, a state of war exists as a result of the determination of the unionists to drive the nationalist element out of the cities and industries in which they have been employed. Already thousands have been driven from Lisburn and other thousands from the city of Belfast. Most of them had to flee because their homes and places of business were burned down by the unionists and their lives threatened in furious attacks. Whenever they offered any resistance that resulted in a street riot, the military fired into the crowds with the result that scores of people have been killed and hundreds wounded, nearly all nationalists. The police and troops have carte blanche authority to shoot as they please. It is charged against the government that General McNeill, in charge of the troops, has made no effort to protect the people whose homes were burned or otherwise destroyed. This is what might be expected owing to the fact that he was the commander of the Ulster volunteers who threatened rebellion if home rule were put in operation.

In addition to this flagrant injustice, Sir Edward Carson now insists that the Ulster volunteers be invested with police authority so that they can shoot whomever they see fit in the name of the law. Inasmuch as Premier Lloyd George is the plaintiff of Carson, it would not be surprising if he would consent to this proposition.

If Mayor MacSwiney of Cork dies, the people may be driven to desperation so that they will do something which would give the army of occupation an excuse for using some of its ammunition in a demonstration of British power somewhat similar to that given at Amritsar in India. Some people believe the government wants just such an opportunity.

TENNESSEE FOOLISHNESS

As one branch of a legislature cannot undo the concurrent work of both, the action of the Tennessee house in voting to expunge from its records all account of its action on the suffrage amendment is supremely foolish. It is useless to attempt to efface the record of a fact that has passed into history.

Even if both branches voted now to reconsider the act of ratification, their action would have no effect, since it would not be in accordance with the established mode of procedure; but the great and all sufficient reason is, that their vote of ratification having been certified by the governor, the amendment to the constitution has been proclaimed by the secretary of state. Tennessee completed the ratification, furnishing the 36th vote; and it cannot now nullify the effect of that vote in changing the constitution so as to legalize woman suffrage.

In 1870, the legislature of New York state attempted to rescind the action of the previous legislature, in 1869, in ratification of the 15th amendment. At that time, the governor had not certified to the affirmative action taken; but after consulting the highest legal authorities, he certified the vote of 1869, so that the negative action of the succeeding legislature was null and void. If states were allowed to change their minds after acting affirmatively on such amendments, the whole constitution could be overturned by the reversal of thirteen states on the question of ratification.

There are some things in reference to the changes in the constitution on which even some legislatures seem to have very vague ideas.

ANOTHER SNAIL

State Treasurer Purcell agrees to get out, and James Jackson, the candidate picked by the republican leaders, is attacked by another stickler candidate, Fred N. Kerr of Winchester, who charges that Jackson is exceeding the legal limit in his expenditures.

Already a bill in equity has been brought asking for an injunction to restrain Jackson and his backers from spending more money for his candidacy than the law allows. The question is now suggested, whether there is a man in the republican party who can run for public office without the too lavish use of money.

"Home is where the heart is," sang the poet. Nowadays heart is where the lease is.

There are now 1039 women in Austria for every 1000 men, according to a census just completed.

It doesn't make any difference how good a fellow the boss is there's sure to come a time when you can find fault with him.

According to the Retail Dry Goods association, the cost of delivering retail goods averages 12 cents a package.

Try to be happy these beautiful September days, for being happy yourself you're sure to make somebody else happy.

Ohio's first woman jury sat with both sides with its verdict, which must perturb the lawyers who love to appeal.

Things We Hate

I am often reminded, says Roger W. Babson, of the old chap who brushed his teeth with yellow soap. He said, "Not because it is good for my teeth but because it is good for my disposition." Sounds foolish, but it is based on a fundamental principle, just the same. The bitterest pills usually do us the most good—the things we hate to do are usually the best for us. Take hurdles, for instance. It doesn't cost much in effort to hop the low ones, but as they get higher and higher it requires more and more effort, until ultimately it takes every ounce of energy you can muster to clear the high "horse." You can never get anywhere on the track in the business world, or anywhere else by only jumping the low hurdles—doing the easy things. Doing easy things never made a world's champion. It doesn't make any difference whether you are poet or plumber, baker or banker, horseholder or housewife, if you want to get to the top of the heap in your particular field, do the hardest things first. "Brush your teeth with yellow soap" every morning by starting on the hardest job of the day. Get it done first it will be good for your disposition and your bank book, and the rest of the day will be easy because the heavy work is done.

Bald Head Row

What flood of memories reference to the bald headed row brings up! That incident the front seats of the orchestra in the theatre supposedly occupied by old gentlemen with young ideas who wanted to get as close to the footlight favorites as possible. And, it was supposed, that women of the stage, as they capered about, delivered themselves of sentimental speeches, reserved their most welcome smiles of these gentlemen of the billiard ball domes. As a matter of fact it is likely that good press-agent and comedy papers capitalized the idea far beyond its intrinsic worth. Yet, nevertheless, there was a time when patrons of the theatre glimpsed the front rows to see if Methusalem with the desert top-piece, and grinning expanse of face was on the job. But the bald headed row, as an institution, has passed. The movies may have had something to do with it. Bara Tieda vamps for all for the youth in the topmost far away balcony and for old age sitting there in the pit, or vice versa. And, in the houses of the legitimate drama, lack of hair on the part of a patron, "cuts no ice" in the impartial smile bestowed on all by the capable actress. The bald headed row, these days, is fiction.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

With the arrival of cool weather, which seems destined to stay with us, and the return of vacationists after Labor Day, local retailers have great hopes of increased business both in clearing out their present season stocks and in opening up their fall and winter goods. It is the general opinion among those who are in a position to know, that cooler weather would do much to rouse business activity and that simultaneously with better business conditions, the numerous sales by which goods have been offered to the public at reduced prices, will be checked. The merchants used the many sales to reduce the stock on hand and now they find their supplies greatly diminished and are ready to send in new orders. There is also the possibility that retailers may obtain goods at reductions, for the reason that as the season is nearing its end, the manufacturers may offer supplies on hand at lower prices so that they may prepare for the opening of the spring season.

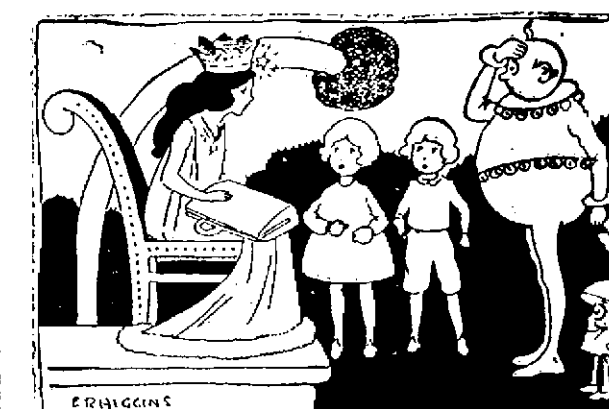

Contrary to the general understanding, "Jamaica ginger" and "Jakey" are two entirely different articles. The ginger is the pure unadulterated liquid which may be bought in drug and other stores for medicinal purposes and which is usually sold in small, two ounce bottles. The alcoholic content of the ginger averages from 90 to 95 per cent. "Jakey" is not straight Jamaica ginger, but the ginger mixed with something else, in most instances a non-intoxicating beverage. The ginger alone, is almost too powerful for beverage purposes.

In regard to the distribution of political mail matter, some of the politicians believe that the last impression is the best, or, in other words, that the circulars which are delivered last into the voters' hands will be most effective. That this is so, was stated by one of the local postoffice officials recently. Despite the rush under which letter carriers are working at the present time, paying special attention to the delivery of political matter, some politicians have made the request that their circulars be delivered to the voters Tuesday afternoon, even if they are put into the postoffice on the morning of the same day. This is the method adopted in many of the world with the voters before they go to the polls. The idea may be good, but it certainly is a hardship on the letter carriers.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Burton

The Fairy Queen thanked Tingaling and the twins for the rent money. Very sweetly, then a worried little frown appeared upon her face. "Here's no money for everything," said she, pointing to the big pocketbook they had laid in her lap. "But where am I to get people to do things? It's time for the Meadow-Grove school to start, and my chief fairy schoolmaster, Scribble Scratch, can't find a soul to help him. He can't teach the singing teacher, and everything else, all at once. Rubadub is tired out from his duties in Scrub-Up-Land, and here's Tingaling puffing like an engine pulling 40 coal cars, so I know he can't help. But people can't teach school anyhow, so maybe. Did you ever see a fat schoolmaster or school-ma'am? No, indeed! Besides, fat people are so fat they'd have the children playing 'riddles' and 'hid-yo' instead of doing their 'times tables' and 'divided by's'."

LOWELL PEOPLE AT SHERBROOKE FAIR

The agricultural fair at Sherbrooke, Que., which opened Aug. 28, is being brought to a close today and it is expected that tomorrow and Monday a great many Lowell people who have spent the week up north will return to their homes. The rush from Lowell to Sherbrooke by train this year has not been as great as in former years, owing to the increase in railroad fares and also to the fact that there was no reduction of rates during the fair week. Up to about three years ago there were special excursions from Boston to Sherbrooke during the fair week, but when the railroads were taken over by Uncle Sam excursions at reduced rates were abandoned and the government's policy in that respect is still in force. Although there has been no rush noticeable on the trains many Lowell people took in the fair. Some went by train but the majority went by auto. Some went last week to attend the fair, which was being held at Trols in the same sights at Sherbrooke, while others will go next week and the week after, to see the fair at Quebec and Toronto. Among those of this city who took in the Sherbrooke fair were Arthur Pelletier, Wilfrid Achin, J. L. Brastard, Arthur Genest and family and many others.

PROBATION OFFICER'S REPORT

Probation Officer Slattery's reports for the month of August, just past, show that the list of drunks numbered 220. Two hundred and seventeen of that number were males and 11 were females. In comparing the figures for August of this year with those of last year, considerable increase is apparent. For August, 1919, the number of drunks was 182, 173 being males and nine females.

VACCINATION SESSIONS

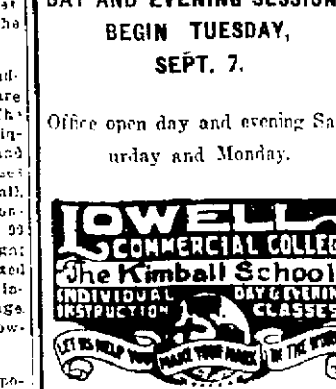

Although 354 children were vaccinated at this week's board of health office at city hall, this total does not hold a candle to the number estimated for the three weeks to come. Despite repeated notices, parents still persist in bringing children to the office at times other than the ones set. Once again these are, Friday afternoon except Saturday, Sunday and holidays, between 1 and 5 o'clock.

Removal Notice

Dr. Thomas B. Smith has removed his office from 107 Merrimack Street to 84 Middlesex Street, Odd Fellows Building.

Quarter Century Ago

From the Old Sun:

"Delegates John Black and Charles A. Carey to the National Convention of Letters Carriers to be held at Philadelphia all next week, departed this afternoon en route to New York via Fall River line. Since that day Mr. Black has passed away but Mr. Carey is still in the service and as active as ever."

Merchants' Week

Says the old Sun: The Merchants' week committee announced the main features for the celebration as follows, allowing plenty of time for the visitors to do business in the stores:

"Tuesday, October 1. At one o'clock veteran fireman's muster. Evening, band concert."

"Wednesday, morning, military parade, details to be announced. Evening, antique and horrors parade, band concert."

"Thursday, morning at 11 o'clock, balloon ascension. Evening, fireworks, band concert."

In addition to this entertainment program, all the stores had provided special attractions for bargain seekers and put on holiday attire in honor of the occasion.

Twenty-Five Years Wed

Says the old Sun:— "Edward G. Tuohy, the well known contractor, and Rose McKearney were united in marriage Monday evening at St. Peter's parochial residence by Rev. Fr. McManus. The bride was attended by Miss Rose E. Norris and Mr. Edward Murphy was best man."

"The marriage of Rev. Frank O. Hall and Miss Vermelle A. Swan took place last evening at the residence of the bride's grandfather, Mr. Daniel Swan, on East Merrimack street. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. Almon Gunnison of Worcester. The Episcopal service being read."

Mr. Brooks were united in marriage Saturday by Rev. Dr. Court. Miss Ella M. Brooks attended the bride and the best man was Mr. John S. Scott. "Mr. James W. Buzzell and Miss Bella L. Huisser were united in marriage by Rev. Robert Court, D.D., Saturday, at the residence of the bride in Bay State court. Miss Esther A. Littlefield was bridesmaid and Mr. Alton Buzzell was best man. The bride was charmingly attired in a sky blue lousade with lace trimmings and garniture of bride's robes."

Labor Day

Lowell had no public observance of Labor day quarter century ago, but the following from the old Sun would indicate that it was highly enjoyed: "Labor day is peculiarly a toiler's holiday and this fact was very much in evidence yesterday. The day was perfect and everybody who could, became a worshipper of Nature. All of the popular resorts were packed during the day and picnic parties were in vogue."

"The games at the Darcot oval and the Burke's gala day at the Fairgrounds were well patronized. Lakeview and Glen Forest took care of many thousands of accidents were few, and none of a serious nature."

"A bicycle band was out in bunches and everybody was in holiday attire. The theatres were well filled in the evening and Lowell arose this morning brighter and better for having enjoyed the new national holiday—Labor day."

"Some 3500 people attended the field day of the Burke's yesterday at the Fair grounds and they were treated to race sport, although one of the advertised features, the sparring, was omitted by order of the chief of police. Previous to the fun on the grounds a parade was held through the principal streets in which the band tub 'Merrimack' was a feature."

Visiting Knights Templar

The Wind-up of Knights Templar week in Lowell observed in connection with the biennial convocation of the order in Boston brought to this city delegates from Arkansas and Texas. Relative to their visit the old Sun said:

"In charge of Joseph E. Farnsworth, general auditor of the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone company, the air knights and their ladies of Arkansas and Texas arrived in Lowell at 10:15 this morning. The party are guests of the directors of the Southwestern company and number about 250. The president, Levi Sprague, secretary and treasurer, Charles J. Glidden and directors, Abner S. Adams, Francis Jewett, J. W. C. Pickering, Wesley A. Gove, Charles S. Tuckerman, Charles E. Adams, David Parker, A. C. Russell, Thomas Sherwin, Harvey A. Whiting, H. Fred Slovins and the following Lowell gentlemen, many of whom were accompanied by their ladies, joined in welcoming the party: A. G. Pollard, Michael Corbett, S. K. Dexter, Othello Greenwood, J. C. Glidden, William Nelson, Robert Simpson, L. T. Truce, C. H. Wilder, F. R. Shedd, E. T. Rowell, Prescott Gates, H. R. Rice, G. A. Saxson, J. L. Chaffour, Sir Knights Walsh, Johnson, Savage, Blood, Slemons, Shaw, Carney, Taff, Brown, Blodgett, Potts and Ochoy."

"The party was escorted through the mills of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. to the corner of Jackson and Central streets, where the electric cars were taken to Belvidere and barges to the top of the hill. Electric cars were again taken to Lakeview where lunch was served by the D. J. Page company. After the lunch the party was conveyed by the electric cars down the Merrimack valley to Lawrence, thence by steam cars to Boston. Dinner was served at the American house in Boston where the American house in Boston where the party were to order and Hon. Charles E. Adams acted as toastmaster."

healthy skin

Yellow, blotchy skin is not only disagreeable and repulsive in itself, but it is the outward sign of biliousness and a sluggish condition of the liver, which may gradually undermine your health.

Don't let this continue. Use "L. F." Atwood's Medicine to keep the liver, stomach and other digestive organs working smoothly. You will feel better, have more energy and your complexion will become clear and healthy. Your blood will absorb more strength from your food, and your system will be better able to withstand diseases.

Keep a bottle always ready. Take a liberal dose at the first symptom of constipation or sick headache. The true "L. F." will benefit the whole family, young and old. It is absolutely harmless, and gives relief without weakening some other organ. For 60 years it has brought health and happiness to thousands, and never failed to justify the confidence placed in it. A "Front Porch Campaign" With Needle and Crochet
Hook Is an Ideal Way To Decide Christmas Gift Problem

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—"Well! Next year I'm going to have my gifts all laid away and ready to send along before Christmas. I'm not going to rush like this again!"

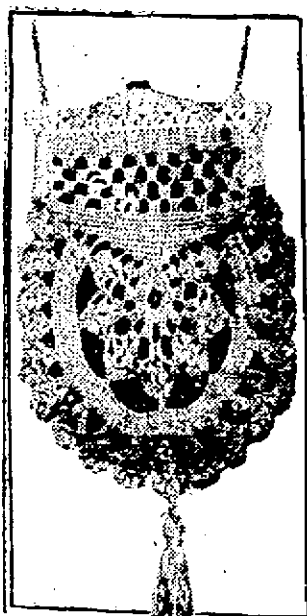

Who didn't say that last year, about

—well, say the day after New Year's! And the year before, and the year before that and—why go further?

Now summer breezes and Christmas gifts don't conflict in the least. In truth, they make a very pleasant companion. An easy chair on a vine-screened porch, or beneath a big tree on the lawn, and a work basket close by filled with odds and ends of lace, and colorful ribbons, embroidery floss, and a crochet hook—everything known to the sort of work basket—augur well for honest-to-goodness "best wishes" to be worked into a collection of tasteful hand-made gifts.

Adorable Fudge Apron

There are aprons, for instance—aprons of every mode and material, from the tiny white tea apron to the all-enveloping kitchen apron. But here's a really bewitching idea for a fudge apron. In a straight piece of linen-towel may be used—a circular opening is cut for the head, leaving enough length to reach to the

at the bottom and at the neck. The entire apron and belt is outlined in a loose buttonhole stitch in black. Rick-rack braid or a narrow crocheted edge may be used instead of the buttonhole stitch.

Net Bouffant Cap

Of the hundred and one possibilities for dainty bouffant caps, here is one which is made of narrow lengths of very fine, cream-colored net, joined together with equally fine insertion. It is shaped to fit the head snugly with a little fullness at the nape of the neck. Tiny rosebuds of blue or orchid cover the net close to the face. From the center a satin streamer, tipped with a larger rosebud, drops to the edge of the cap.

Satin Rosettes

Many pretty lingerie accessories can be fashioned from satin ribbon of varying widths. One of these is the rosette. This particular rosette, illustrated, is about five inches in diameter and is intended to adorn the flounce of a silken petticoat. Miniature rosettes of the same pattern are just as suitable on camisole, gown or sachet bag. With white ribbon forming the rosette proper, French knots of narrow baby ribbon make the center, and wider, flowered baby ribbon forms a looped cascade beneath.

Lady Lookabout

Sometimes as I look upon a group of young girls gathered in the square, or elsewhere, I must own that I am not fascinated by the present day posture: the hunched shoulders; the chest; the high abdomen; the hollow back. No one can make me believe that this posture is the one taught by teachers of calisthenics. These teachers favor the military carriage. The posture is cultivated from other sources. It may be that I stumbled across its fair quite accidentally when I spent some time at the city library one day this week, looking over the magazines on the table reserved for women. Here I found the young girl of today in all her charming insouciance of pose as outlined above. In such periodicals as Vogue, Harpers and Vanity Fair. Page after page of her there were, and not a straight pair of shoulders or a straight spine in the lot.

Paris as the fountain head of all that is correct in fashion was quoted incessantly by these magazines, and as long as the feminine world takes its inspiration from Paris, anything may be expected. As I looked upon one of the groups in the square a few days ago, I let my imagination run ahead for a few years, and I saw these same young girls with the added weight that the years bring to nearly every woman. The hunched-up shoulders carried a hump of fat; the flat chests were flatter, and so on. Every line now so carefully cultivated, will exaggerate with time. I could let myself grow quite pessimistic, but black indeed is the cloud through which one ray of sunlight cannot pierce, and I recall the wonderful adaptability of the human figure, responding, as it always has, to the slightest dictate of fashion, as though made of India rubber. Herein lies the only hope of avoiding a distorted middle age. It is up to Paris.

Lovely Georgette Crepe

One of the loveliest materials ever conceived is georgette crepe. Its sheer, silken daintiness makes an appeal to every woman, yet the very features through which it makes its appeal are causing its downfall. Love for its transparent sheerness has been its Waterloo. Beautiful waists have been fashioned from it, but when women choose to wear these waists with almost no underwear, the knell was sounded for the popularity of georgette crepe. Not perhaps among those who like georgette worn in this way, but for the great majority of women who frown upon that exposure thus caused. Should one doubt the passing popularity of georgette, all she needs do is consult the advertisements of many leading stores, here and elsewhere. Georgette crepe waists are being sold for a fraction of their former prices. Also the quality of the goods has deteriorated, the thinner and therefore poorer grades of the goods being the most sought.

To the Women Voters

Every woman in Lowell who has been alert enough to see that her name is on the list of registered voters will no doubt mark her ballot at the state primaries Tuesday. Elsewhere in The Sun will be found an announcement of the hours and places of voting. As this is the first time for voting for many Lowell women, it will be well to study these announcements carefully. As The Sun will not be published on Monday, Labor day, a study of the ballot to be posted in every polling booth also is to be recommended, as it is doubtful if women as a whole are familiar with the candidates for the different offices. Between ourselves, girls, we are as familiar as the men are. What do they know about the various candidates beyond their names? Many of the names appearing on the ballot will be new to them as well as to us, so whichever way we vote, at least we can do no worse than has been done. As far as I can see, a cross on a ballot, in ninety-nine per cent. of the cases, is a shot in the dark, and it is immaterial whether that cross be made by man or woman. For one hundred years we have struggled for suffrage. Now we have it. Let us use it intelligently, if possible.

The School Problem

The time is at hand when many parents whose children have been working through the summer must decide whether or no they will return to school or forego further education. For the parents who actually need the earnings of their children to help support the home, there is no decision to be made. The question answers itself. The children of those parents must continue at work. These children, thankfully, are greatly in the minority. The great majority of homes are not actually dependent upon the wages of their fourteen and fifteen-year children, however welcome those wages may be, and these are the children whose parents should concern themselves greatly over the question of a little more school for Thomas or Mary.

There is no question about the lure of the wages offered the young boy and girl today, and giving them up is hard, yet no child is a skilled employee, nor is a trade which requires time to acquire, paying high wages on the start. Therefore if a young person is drawing a high wage, it may be safely assumed that he is not acquiring a worthwhile training. Therefore, as unskilled help is always at hand, the young person may be assured that even after years of application to his job, he never will draw much more than the first day he worked at it.

A well known educator has said that the employer of a fourteen or sixteen-year-old boy should pay that boy eighty or one hundred dollars a week to repay him for the opportunities he has forever cut himself from by ab-

First Lady of the Land Finds Real Happiness
In Nursing the President Back to Health

N.E.A. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—For a solid year the first lady of the land has shut up her beauty and charm in the sick-room and private office of the president.

There have been anxious days; many of them; but Edith Wilson has been happy in her hard role of nurse and business woman—happier, some say, than even before.

No Easy Place

Sentimental Susie, sighing to be the wife of an illustrious man, doesn't realize that it is a lot easier and more comfortable to be plain Mrs. William Jones of Hinkville.

It is never a simple matter, being a president's wife.

At best it isn't all gaiety, pretty clothes, balls and lovely trips to Europe.

At worst it is a job of sober service that takes poise, patience, tact, brains, self-sacrifice and sturdy physical stamina.

As in Mrs. Wilson's case—unparalleled in White House history—the test may come without warning, bringing a burden of work and anxiety that only an exceptional woman can successfully carry. A woman, say, whose entire character finds expression in one well-marked channel—a love which is concentrated upon one object.

In Mrs. Wilson's case it is her husband. Ask anyone in Washington: "What interests has the president's wife?"

"The president," is the invariable answer.

"But what work appeals to her?"

"The president's," is the reply.

"Surely she has some pet ambition, some—"

"To make the president happy?"

"Well, has she talents? Abilities?"

"Yes. Her talents are reading aloud, playing golf, discussing human affairs, writing letters, analyzing reports and pardon pleas, hunting up good detective stories, supervising the household, motoring and movies—all with, for and because of the president."

Surprised Many

This devotion to the president took a form that caused many a seasoned politician a start of astonishment about a year ago.

They knew her for a charming woman, with gracious Virginia-born manners and a bright way of telling an anecdote or dainty story.

But that she should develop almost overnight the kind but stern competencies of a trained nurse, the tact of an experienced diplomat and the resourcefulness of a professional entertainer, made them sit up and take notice.

Senator Amazed

"I confess," Senator Carter Glass told me the other day, "I was amazed at the promptness with which Mrs. Wilson renounced every other interest in life and from the moment of the president's illness applied herself to helping and sustaining him."

"She showed from the first a grasp of affairs that surprised us all. She never intruded, yet she was always there, ready and able to write a good letter, convey the president's view to this or that official."

Always Cheerful

"No matter how much serious work she did, she always kept her brightness and sense of humor, and the optimism that never failed her even when the president's condition was gravest."

"She had a hard task, too, to sense exactly the right proportion of work and diversion to allow him. His activity and conscientiousness made him restless, at times difficult. Yet Mrs. Wilson's common sense judgment always guided her aright."

Now that President Wilson is better and able to work three or four a day, Mrs. Wilson's nursing duties have merged into those of a trained personal secretary.

Timely's Frame

Joseph P. Tumulty, apparently far from feeling that his nose has been put out of joint by the first lady's assumption of secretarial services, voices enthusiastic admiration. He says if he "knew how to write" he would like to "write a book about Mrs. Wilson" so that people would "know how wonderful she really is."

"So versatile and dependable," is how Mr. Tumulty puts it. "She has no showy talents, yet she can do everything that really counts."

"She does things in a businesslike way, but always with tact. She knows how to meet people and entertain them, and she does it with a brevity that is education. This boy is out of the race. Handicapped as he is, he cannot compete."

Another feature which parents are likely to overlook, is that everyone of their children contributes to the support of the public schools, whether or not their children partake of the opportunities the schools offer. The man who does not pay a property tax may argue that he does not contribute to this support. He does. Through his landlord he contributes just as surely as though he went personally to the tax collector's office. The parents who keep their children in school take advantage of the support they give the schools. The parents who send their children to work at an early age are supporting the schools for the children of other parents—not their own.

All this is beside the fact of the better educated boy having greater opportunities than the boy with less education. The poorest kind of a parent will admit that. So, parents, do not let yourselves be deluded by the seemingly high wages your child is bringing home. The child is paying dearly for them, and he will pay as long as he lives. He has a right to the education this country offers him. Are you going to sell his birthright for a mess of pottage?

LADY LOOKABOUT.

MRS. WILSON

them. She's a splendid story teller and mimic. Yet she never loses dignity nor says an indiscreet thing. "She is a woman who can keep a secret. There's just one secret she can't keep, and that is her love for the president. That is her whole life—her devotion to him."

Devoted Daughter

Being the president's wife certainly has not set Mrs. Wilson apart from her family, the Bollings, to whom she is devoted with the very second-best devotion of her heart. Every day, during the hour or two when the president is occupied with Dr. Grayson's electrical treatments and rest periods, Mrs. Wilson walks over to see her mother at the Powhatan hotel.

"She is the most loving and loyal woman I ever knew," says the former Miss Bennham, now Mrs. Helm, who for years was Mrs. Wilson's personal secretary. "Working for her was never anything but pleasure—and I assure you the lot of a secretary to the president's wife can be far from a happy one."

Her First Interest

"What interested her most," I asked, "when you were secretary?"

"Her husband," promptly replied Mrs. Helm, running true to form.

"She is a woman who asks nothing else of life than to devote it to the man she loves."

"Quiet and home appeal to her. She goes nowhere, holds no receptions, serves but an occasional cup of tea to the cabinet ladies, has no entertainments but the White House phonograph and movies. Yet I believe she is happier in her life of seclusion and constant service than she ever was before."

SWOLLEN JOINTS
GAVE GREAT PAIN

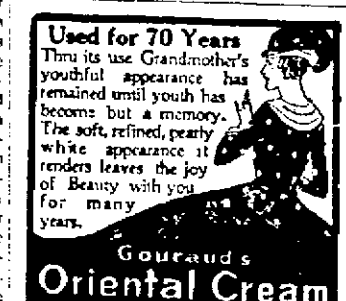

The chief symptom of rheumatism is pain. The most successful treatment is the one that quickly relieves and banishes this disagreeable symptom. Many rheumatic people suffer pains that could be avoided by building up the blood. When rheumatism is associated with thin blood it cannot be corrected until the blood is built up.

Mr. Oscar Downs who lives at No. 7 Ashland street, Haverhill, Mass., suffered from rheumatism for years but he was more fortunate than a great many victims of the disease, for he found a remedy that so built up his entire system that he is now free from rheumatism. When seen recently at his home, Mr. Downs said:

"I suffered from rheumatism, on and on, for years and at times it was so severe that I was flat on my back for weeks. My trouble began, I believe, when I caught a severe cold while in a badly run-down condition. The cold seemed to settle in my joints. My hands became stiff and swollen and I could hardly use them. They pained all the time. There was also a pain across my back. When I straightened up the pain went through me like a knife. Both my knees were swollen and stiff and I was just able to drag myself along. I began to think that I should be a cripple all my life and became greatly discouraged."

"My wife had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with benefit so I decided to try them. After taking the second box I could feel that the pain was less severe. The swelling gradually disappeared from my hands and knees and then I got so that I could walk without effort. I continued taking the pills until my blood was built up. The pills also strengthened my nerves and I sleep well now. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they saved me from a life of pain."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by your own druggist or will be sent direct by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 60 cents per box by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write for the free book, "Building Up the Blood," containing a special chapter on rheumatism.—Adv.

PRIMITIVE INFLUENCE SHOWN BY GOWN

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The craze for embroidery that has already started, promises to lead to all sorts of strange effects. At a recent fashion show the "primitive" influence was very marked. Here is one of the gowns.

It is black suede cloth, made in one piece with the opening at the side and the front cut in four sections. Traced on the front in fine silver beads are strange figures and devices after the manner of ancient Egypt. Hieroglyphs down the side and across the body on the odd cut sleeves complete the gown, though the designer, with its towering glyptic and hieroglyphic, knitted "miser's purse" and the animal scarf all tend to emphasize the aforesaid "primitive" effect.

lique and modern, classical and popular; The Gypsy Singers, who have scored better, perhaps, than ever before, will also be on the program, as well as Chase & La Tour in the comedy melange. In addition there will be three new acts, as follows: Russell & Evans, a comedy duo, in singing; Leavitt & Park, comedy songs and patter; and Billy Layden, a singer of repute.

For Labor day week, opening Monday, an all-star aggregation of vaudeville performers will be featured. Everything that one can wish in the variety line will be offered, with Ralph Dunbar's "Salon Singers" among the prime features. "The Salon Singers" are a mixed quartet and an accompanist. In every respect the "salongers" resemble a concert organization. This first attraction much attention will be appearing jointly with William Jennings Bryan on the Chautauqua circuit. Since that time they have held the boards on their own merits.

Arthur and Morton Havel, honest-to-goodness brothers, have joined hands and will be seen in "Suits," a screaming farce comedy, based on a clothing store dummy. Arthur Havel has been in the show business for many years, given the greatest of satisfaction through his mirth-making comedy. Morton Havel is no less a winner. Their act is rated as one of the very best in vaudeville.

Julia Nash, with a splendid legitimate stage record, is now in the two-a-day, associated with C. H. O'Donnell, in "The Chorus Girl's Romance," which will head the bill. It is a humorous domestic dash, a triangle without a problem at any of its points. Successful comedy is derived from the serious situation, handled lightly. Miss Nash is a delightful actress, one of much resource and personal charm. Mr. O'Donnell is scarcely less capable.

There are so many "doocies" it is mighty hard to keep track of them. Jed is one of the score, more or less, and he is a decidedly versatile chap, as is demonstrated in his splendid act, Margaret Ford, a newcomer, will be new things in the way of song recitations, and Hedford & Winchester are clever and eccentric jugglers. Sam Green and Mildred Myra have "A Merry Melody," a happy-go-lucky King-gram, Topics of the Day and a Scenic picture will be shown at all performances.

TOP-NOTCH BILL AT THE STRAND FOR COMING WEEK—GOOD SUNDAY PROGRAM

General Manager Soriero's guarantee that the patrons of The Strand were to be in for a bigger and better photographic program during the coming fall and winter season is again borne out in the offering which he announces for the coming week. For the first three days of the week, starting with matinee on Monday, William Farnum, the screen's greatest lover, will be shown in his greatest film offering, "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," and Mabel Normand will be presented in her latest comedy success, "The Slim Princess." For the last three days of the week, beginning with matinee on Thursday, a big triple feature bill will be given, including Viola Dana in "The Chorus Girl's Romance," Will Rogers in "Jed Dooley," and Larry Semon in "Solid Concrete."

Besides these features there will be the usual other contributions, all given and shown "The Strand way."

The sacred concert for Sunday will have the usual five acts of refined vaudeville and an entire change of photographs.

William Farnum in an entirely new sort of a role is promised by the advance news of "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," which will head the bill for the first three days of the week. It is the story of hidden treasure and Farnum plays two parts, first of the youth who finds the treasure and then the man who comes back to claim his own. The treasure was hidden by nature, not by man, and is in the bed of a river. This all sounds very promising. Also, of course, there is a pretty love story—and the name of Louise Lovely in the cast is indication enough that it will be well acted. Others in the cast are Henry J. Hebert, Harry Dever, G. Raymond Nye, Claire De-lore, Molly Bishop and others. With such a cast patrons may expect abundant action. The story is by Jackson Gregory and the scenario by Charles Kenyon.

Fat girls and thin girls is the all-absorbing question in the beautiful little city of Morovenia. Much on the men of Morovenia admire the large proportions of stout women, but their ruler is accursed with a slim and beautifully modeled daughter, known among the inhabitants of the city, and spoken of with awe, as the slim princess. Much is she hated by the young men of Morovenia and great is her sorrow. A law is given to find a suitor for the slim one and over the walls climbs her affinity in the shape of a husky American. Outstrokes are placed between him and the princess. Does he overcome them or does he not? This problem will be solved for you if you see Mabel Normand in "The Slim Princess."

The usual comedy and the newest picture, "The Slim Princess," will add to the attractiveness and general enjoyment of the program.

For the last three days of the week, beginning Thursday, a three-feature bill is promised. Never has Viola Dana been afforded greater opportunity to display her irresistible charm than in "The Chorus Girl's Romance," which will head the bill. It is a humorous domestic dash, a triangle without a problem at any of its points.

Successful comedy is derived from the serious situation, handled lightly. Miss Nash is a delightful actress, one of much resource and personal charm. Mr. O'Donnell is scarcely less capable.

There are so many "doocies" it is mighty hard to keep track of them. Jed is one of the score, more or less, and he is a decidedly versatile chap, as is demonstrated in his splendid act, Margaret Ford, a newcomer, will be new things in the way of song recitations, and Hedford & Winchester are clever and eccentric jugglers. Sam Green and Mildred Myra have "A Merry Melody," a happy-go-lucky King-gram, Topics of the Day and a Scenic picture will be shown at all performances.

General Manager Soriero's guarantee that the patrons of The Strand were to be in for a bigger and better photographic program during the coming fall and winter season is again borne out in the offering which he announces for the coming week. For the first three days of the week, starting with matinee on Monday, William Farnum, the screen's greatest lover, will be shown in his greatest film offering, "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," and Mabel Normand will be presented in her latest comedy success, "The Slim Princess." For the last three days of the week, beginning with matinee on Thursday, a big triple feature bill will be given, including Viola Dana in "The Chorus Girl's Romance," Will Rogers in "Jed Dooley," and Larry Semon in "Solid Concrete."

Besides these features there will be the usual other contributions, all given and shown "The Strand way."

The sacred concert for Sunday will have the usual five acts of refined vaudeville and an entire change of photographs.

William Farnum in an entirely new sort of a role is promised by the advance news of "The Joyous Trouble-Makers," which will head the bill for the first three days of the week. It is the story of hidden treasure and Farnum plays two parts, first of the youth who finds the treasure and then the man who comes back to claim his own. The treasure was hidden by nature, not by man, and is in the bed of a river. This all sounds very promising. Also, of course, there is a pretty love story—and the name of Louise Lovely in the cast is indication enough that it will be well acted. Others in the cast are Henry J. Hebert, Harry Dever, G. Raymond Nye, Claire De-lore, Molly Bishop and others. With such a cast patrons may expect abundant action. The story is by Jackson Gregory and the scenario by Charles Kenyon.

It's an interesting story and particularly well told. The third big feature on the bill introduces Larry Semon, the screen's newest comedy king in "Solid Concrete." This humor-making film creation is said to have more real good hearty laughs to it than any of Semon's former efforts.

BILL EXTRAORDINARY AT THE MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE NEXT WEEK

Another attractive program of motion picture features will be the Merrimack Square theatre. "Bringing Up Eddy," a most entertaining comedy production, resulting in an all-around success, and "The Four-Fush," starring popular Hal Hamilton, will be the outstanding attractions. The usual excellent surrounding program will also be presented.

Labor Day marks the opening of the photograph season of the fall of 1920 at the Merrimack Square theatre and the occasion promises to be doubly notable in the popular range of amusement houses' annuals inasmuch as Paramount-Artcraft week, given over to special features made by this nationally famous producing concern, also opens on the holiday.

With these two observances in mind Manager Nelson has assembled one of the strongest bills that any motion picture house in Lowell has ever presented. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday's big feature will be "Civilian Clothes," the noted story based on a war episode, which has had such a successful stage career.

The story deals with an army captain who married a society girl in France, while she was dazzled by his handsome appearance in uniform, and discovered upon his return to America, after having been reported killed in action, that she was reluctant to own him in his over-loud civilian clothes. To cure her of her snobbish ideas, he became a butler in her household and after several dramatic developments that fell in with his plans exactly, convinced her that clothes don't make the man.

The leading role is taken by Thomas Meighan, one of the most prominent men in the motion picture field. His rating as a star is of the highest class and since his appearance in "The Miracle Man," his popularity has increased in leaps and bounds. His Admirable Criticism in Cecil B. DeMille's superb production of "Male and Female" placed his stellar fame on an enduring foundation and it is hardly surprising that his latest picture, in "Civilian Clothes," he has a role that suits his talents and personality admirably.

The second big feature for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be a Mack Sennett comedy production entitled "Great Scott." Sennett comedies are known far and wide wherever motion pictures are shown and stand for the highest quality of the farcical productions.

SCENE FROM "CIVILIAN CLOTHES," IN WHICH THE LOWELL PLAYERS WILL OPEN THE SEASON AT THE OPERA HOUSE MONDAY

OPERA HOUSE OPENS NEXT WEEK —STELLAR LIGHTS IN NEW COMPANY

The opening of the stock season at the Opera House by the Lowell Players next week is certainly good news to thousands of theatergoers of this city and vicinity. The marked success attained and genuine satisfaction given at season under the management of J. William Schaeke, who is again at the helm for the coming season, is sure to be repeated this winter. The new company, which includes some of the stellar lights in stock circles in the city, together with the selection of the biggest stage successes of the past season, should carry sufficient assurance to patrons generally, to guarantee them of the most thoroughly enjoyable and entertaining engagements at Lowell has ever experienced. Miss Marguerite Fields, the charming and talented leading woman of last year's company has been retained, together with Miss Priscilla Knowles and Jack Hennett, the latter as director of productions. The members are Milton Byron, a young man who comes out of the west with an enviable reputation as a stock star; Maxwell Driscoll, Henry Gurney, Miss Sarah Ayres, Miss Florence Hill, Fred Woodbury, a former Lowell man and others of equal note in theatrical circles. All are specially fitted for stock work, and in combination should give to the Lowell people some of the best and highest-class stock productions for seasons. "Civilian Clothes," Oliver Morosco's great after-the-war-comedy drama, success, is the play chosen as the opener, and in selecting this wonderfully good play, the management has made a regular ten-strike. It was only recently released for stock use and General Manager Schaeke and Associate Manager Charles E. Cooke were obliged to offer extra inducements to secure it. It's a great story about a young man who won his spurs and the heart of a southern belle while fighting in the trenches in France. It was then the gallant Capt. Samuel McGinnis of the victorious American forces and was loved and admired by his happy bride and all who knew him. When he came back after the war and shed his uniform for civilian clothes he lost most of his charm in the eyes of his young wife. It's this theme that the author has worked into a delightfully interesting three-part play. What will this rather high-born-belle snub do to solve the problem that faces her? Acknowledge the captain and be so socially disgraced and probably be unhappy, or will she deny him and try for a secret divorce? "It's better to wait and see just how the play solves the problem. See it and be delighted. Tickets are selling fast for all performances. If you are a regular patron it would be well to place your name on the subscription list and have your favorite seats reserved for you weekly. It costs no more and it saves you much inconvenience. Telephone 261. First performances Monday afternoon and night.

TEACHING FOREIGN SPEAKING WOMEN

Beginning July 12, and closing August 1, a period of seven weeks, thirty-five classes, financed by an appropriation made by the school board requested by representatives of various women's organizations in the city, have been connected to teach foreign-speaking women in this city, canning, simple cooking and English. Mrs. Herbert Swett is open of the most thoroughly enjoyable and entertaining engagements at Lowell has ever experienced. Miss Marguerite Fields, the charming and talented leading woman of last year's company has been retained, together with Miss Priscilla Knowles and Jack

THOUGHT SHE HAD HEART DISEASE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Made Complete Cure of Stomach Trouble

MRS. FRANK W. WALLACE

Moultonville, Carroll Co., N. H.

"An account I read about 'Fruit-a-tives' or Fruit Liver Tablets in one of our newspapers prompted me to try this remedy.

I was all run down and work was burdensome owing to indigestion and fullness, due to gas on my stomach which caused me to belch a good deal. My heart seemed to be affected.

It was two years ago that I was in this condition and began the use of 'Fruit-a-tives'. Even though the trouble had been of a few years standing, the use of 'Fruit-a-tives' proved the very remedy I required.

I was freed of the indigestion, which I attributed to my heart; and I can conscientiously recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' as a remedy of merit."

CAR SHOP LABORERS

Joseph E. Duffy, president of an organization composed of Hillerica Car Shop laborers, says The Sun was in error in stating a day or two ago that the day received by the laborers in question amounted to from 10 to 13 cents per hour. The laborers, he says, received 8 1/2 cents per hour increase, making the rate of wages at the present time 16 cents an hour.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS FOR POSTAL SERVICE

The United States Civil Service commission will hold a competitive examination in Lowell on October 2, for the positions of clerk and carrier in the post office in this city.

Applicants must have reached their 18th birthday, but not their 45th birthday, on the date of examination, and must be citizens of the United States. Male applicants must measure not less than five feet four inches in height in bare feet. No male applicant who passes the examination will be eligible for appointment either as clerk or carrier who does not weigh at least 125 pounds without overcoat or hat. It will be inadvisable for male applicants whose normal weight is less than 125 pounds to enter the examination. Female applicants are not required to be of any specific weight or height.

Each applicant will be required to submit to the examiner on the day of examination a photograph of himself taken within two years. The entrance salary is $1400 per annum with promotion of $120 every year until a maximum of $1560 is reached. Subsidies will be paid at the rate of 60c. an hour.

SALVATION ARMY GRANTED PERMIT

The Lowell Salvation Army has been granted a permit from the city land and buildings department to make extensive alterations upon the interior of the brick building at 197 Appleton street, recently purchased by the army for a new headquarters and home. In addition to interior changes including the removal of stairs to allow for a large assembly room, the entrance will be moved and the present store front changed. The estimated cost is $4000.

The Cosmopolitan Trust company, lessee of the store at Central and Market streets, will expend $1500 in alterations, according to a building permit issued today. The store front will be changed; plate glass set and grill work placed in the front and at the side.

Sailor's Shirt Led to Rescue

With the boat at the bottom in 185 feet of water, the men worked desperately. Some of the water was expelled and the stern rose slowly, but the storage batteries had been flooded, releasing chlorine fumes, the same gas that was released by the Germans in their first gas attacks in the war.

The sickening fumes drove the crew from the compartments. With the batteries flooded, they were forced to work practically in the darkness, aided only by small flashlights.

The men worked in two minute relays. They could not stand it for a longer period. The chlorine sank to the bottom of the ship but there was no fresh air and the oxygen was rapidly exhausted.

Swearing and panting, the men worked at the hull. It was slow work, but finally a hole was made in a thin trickle of fresh air floated in.

An official report of the accident was made today by the commander of the destroyer Beaver. The Beaver was standing by the battleship Ohio which today was towing the submarine from Cape Henlopen to the Delaware breakwater, at three miles an hour. It was expected the flotilla would arrive at the breakwater late today.

"Consider saving personnel was splendid work. Slightest mistake after accident on part of officers would have resulted in the loss of some or all," said the Beaver report.

Members of the crew of a destroyer which arrived at the Philadelphia navy yard after having been at the scene of the disaster, declared the accident was due to negligence on the part of a member of the crew of the S.S. The official report says an air intake valve failed to close when the submarine dived.

IN POLICE COURT

The list of offenders in police court this morning was the shortest for some time, only three being called. Abraham Albeck, an operative of Cushing street, pleaded not guilty to assault and battery upon Louis Namt and were put over until Sept. 10.

Lowell joins in the third annual drive for better motion pictures

WE prophesied that 1920 would be the greatest year in the history of the screen.

It was—and is!

Never before were there such pictures as: Cecil B. DeMille's "Male and Female" and "Why Change Your Wife?"; George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man"; John Barrymore's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"; George Fitzsimmons' "The Girl in the Red Velvet Robe"; D. Taylor's "Huckleberry Finn"; and William S. Hart in "Sage".

All these are Paramount Pictures, and there were 100 more just as good.

Paramount has 104 even finer pictures in store for you in the new season that opens on September 5th. The theatres that will show these new Paramount Pictures in the twelve months to come are inviting you to join in the celebration.

Paramount Week is the time when there is proof plenty that there is an abundance of good pictures. It marks the opening of the fall season—the refreshing indication that the hot weather is over and the best show-time of all the year is here again.

All the best theatres are showing Paramount Pictures this week. Celebrate by going!

COAL AND GAS UP

And a Shortage of the Former Predicted

A great inventor and thousands of people claim it is possible to dispense with these commodities.

DOING WITHOUT COAL AND GAS MEANS

Lower taxes—rents—car—R. R. fares—freight rates—lower manufacturing costs—heating and lighting—no furnaces—no coal or gas ranges—no smoke or ashes—better health—living costs cut in a thousand ways—not in the dim future. Work is now in progress. All of this is possible with an invention as great as the telephone.

Mill Stories for Mill Workers

The following communication is received:

Editor Sun:

I am glad you gave a little of the history of the founding of the mills as the foreigners here have no idea how they were started. I work in a mill department in which there are Greeks, Poles, Armenians, French, English, Irish, Portuguese, Lithuanians, Finns and several other nationalities.

There are also socialists who talk among these people and try to convince them that the mills were built with money taken from the operatives by dishonest means. The men and women whose money built the mills get no credit. I hope you will give more of the history of the Lowell mills.

Truly yours,

A WEAVER.

THREE VETERAN MILL WORKERS

The following very interesting communication came in this morning and has been rushed through in a hurry. We will have more about these mill hands later. Meanwhile:

Editor Sun:

For the information of "Margaret" in last Saturday's Sun, I am sure she will be interested in the following communication which I think will stand as a record not only in the mills of Lowell but in all New England for our department alone. The Merrimack mill holds this record. The first employee I wish to speak of is John Greeley, a graduate of the Merrimack mill, who started to work in the Merrimack mill room in 1875. He is still plugging away in the same faithful way that he has been doing for the last 45 years. The next one is John Danahy, known throughout the city wherever mill spinners are spoken of as the prince of third hands. John started in the Merrimack mill in 1874 as a back boy, was advanced to doffer, then to spinner, then to third hand which position he holds today. He has the respect and good wishes of the spinners, for Johnny has been a friend to them all. The third one is John Clancy, who started to work in the Merrimack mill in 1876 as a mule spinner. He was advanced to third hand, then to second hand and finally reached the goal he aimed for when Superintendent Clarke (now the attorney) made him overseer of the mill room, which position he holds today, after 46 years of faithful service. He has always given satisfaction to employer and employees. Now, Mr. Editor, the length of service of those three faithful employees combined is one hundred and thirty-five years or an average of 45 years in one department. Before closing I must mention one other faithful old employee of another department, the card room, my old friend, Miss Anna Burke, who started in the Merrimack 40 years ago, and is still a faithful employee, considered by the mill as one of the best. I am myself, an old employee, as one of the best sweater tenders in the Merrimack mill.

AN OLD TIMER.

HARTLEY & KELLEHER

For the best workmanship, the highest grades of materials and the cheapest prices in the wiring for electricity, see Hartley & Kelleher, electrical contractors at 47 Union street. These men have made a special study of house and office wiring and they know their business. Their motto is "Live and let live."

THE NEW YORK SHOP

French pleating is the specialty of the New York shop, room 212 Bradley building, 147 Central street. This modiste establishment is being conducted by Miss M. Cognac, who also does hems, collars, picot-edging, button-holes and cloth-covered buttons.

THE DREWETT CART

Home-made cooking is what you don't find in every lunch room of the city, but if you patronize the Drewett cart at the corner of Paige and Brookings streets you will feel right at home, for the chef of this eating emporium makes it his business to cook food just as his mother used to do and that is saying a lot. This place is where the boys meet.

JOHN H. O'NEIL

How is your furnace? Have you looked it over since last spring? If not it is time you got busy, for within a short time you will need its services. In order to make sure that the heater will be in good running condition for the winter months it would be well for you to call in John H. O'Neil, sheet metal worker at 118 Gorham street, who knows everything worth knowing about furnaces.

HAT BLEACHERY

The end of the straw hat for the 1920 summer is approaching, which means that men will soon have recourse to the felt lid. E. H. Severy, Inc., proprietors of the Hat Bleachery at 133 Middle street are now ready to clean, dye and reblock your last fall's hat and it may pay you to bring back to life the hat you discarded last fall. Remember new lids are very expensive.

CENTRALVILLE FRUIT CO.

All kinds of fruits in season, pure candies, delicious ice cream and tobacco and cigars are on sale at the Centralville Fruit Co., 230 Bridge street. This store is being managed by C. A. Improvement Predicted

A bulletin of the Federal Reserve bank has the following relative to the business outlook:

"Continued readjustment of economic and business conditions generally has been the characteristic feature of the month of August. There are already indications that the transition period is nearing a halt and that improvement of the general situation is in sight. Nevertheless, there is still much to be done before business, prices and industry can be regarded as having settled down upon a stable basis. In manufacturing districts Federal Reserve agents report dullness of business, accompanied by unusual reaction and hesitation on the part of the middlemen and dealers. This is the result of reaction among consumers, who have refused to pay excessive prices, and of some tendency to unemployment in various directions, due to the letting down of demand."

No Cause For Discouragement

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 4.—With prospects of the greatest crops in the history of the United States, with under-expansion of railroads rather than of over-expansion of business to blame for many troubles, with banks of the nation in splendid condition, the country will enter next year with a vast fund of new wealth, and the situation is one to be viewed with optimism.

This is the opinion of George L. Tickner, vice president of the Syracuse Trust company, who has seen many fluctuations in the nation's business during the past quarter-century as a banker. The expression common everywhere that "money is tight" isn't relevant. It's a misnomer, in the opinion of Mr. Tickner.

"With sugar high in price, no one says sugar is tight," he says. "The expression is that it is in big demand. There is no harm in money rates being high. The present rate of the Bank of England standing the whole British Empire is 7 per cent. The Federal Reserve bank of the United States on business paper is 7 per cent. The Bank of Japan is charging 8 per cent."

"This covers a very large area, three countries doing a terrific amount of manufacturing, a general commercial business. If money were at 4 p. c. this would mean that nobody was doing any business, and that there was no demand for money to employ in trade and take care of production."

MECHANICS PHALANX

Local Organization Holds Meeting and Discusses Plans for Annual Meeting and Dinner

A meeting under the new charter of the Lowell Mechanics' Phalanx was held in the company rooms in the armory in Westford street last night. There was a good attendance.

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting and of communications, Major Kittredge reported on progress being made at the camp near Johnson's corner in Tyngsboro, and stated that one week from Sunday there would be a "feed" served to all men who wished to spend the day there. The camp is under repair at the present time. It was said that the annual meeting and dinner of the phalanx would be held soon, possibly at the Dracut rifle range, and it was proposed that a target shoot be planned for that day. W. H. Boyle was elected committee of one to choose a team to represent the phalanx at the shoot to be held in Wakefield September 11 and 12 under the auspices of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston. A committee of three, Messrs. Robillard, Brock and Mallie was appointed to pick out a basketball team for the coming winter season. It was indicated that games could be arranged with some of the first semi-amateur teams of the city. A number of new members were admitted to the organization last night and plans were laid for the secretary to send out a circular letter to all former members of Co. C that they might be persuaded to join.

FAREWELL PARTY

Miss Hilda Riley, a resident of North Chelmsford, who on next Tuesday will begin a training course as nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, was tendered a farewell party at her home last evening. The young woman was presented a travelling bag and was showered with best wishes. Musical numbers were given and refreshments were served. The success of the party was due to the efforts of Miss Florence Welch.

LALIAS AUTO SERVICE

Automobiles are reminded of the fact that at 41 Moody street is located the Lalias Auto Service, a place where all kinds of accessories for all kinds of automobiles can be bought at prices that are reasonable. This firm also deals in auto tires and has on hand handsome closed cars for all occasions.

LYNN SHOE STORE

The Lynn Shoe Store at 306 Merrimack street is the place where one can purchase shoes at manufacturers' prices. These people have come to Lowell to help reduce the high cost of living and their chip is of great benefit to the residents of this city.

FRIENDS' BREAD

Friend's like home-made bread is on sale at all grocers, because it is pure, wholesome and nutritious. It is the ideal loaf for those who are accustomed to home-made bread. It retails at 12 cents. Try it.

The first central gas plant in the world was erected by Prof. T. S. C. Lowe, an American scientist, in 1865.

TOTS GUARDED BY "RETURN ADDRESS"

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 4.—The newest fad at the beach here is for little tots to have their name and "return address" sewed on the back of their bathing suits. It was started by mothers whose young sons were inclined to "stray." The fad has spread to many other beaches.

LIST OF LOWELL EX-SERVICE MEN ELIGIBLE TO VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Word has been received at the local office of the American Red Cross in Merrimack st. from the federal vocational board that the following ex-service men of this city have been granted compensation by the bureau of war risk insurance and that they are eligible to vocational training: John Gansley, 125 Adams street; Cowlin H. McKenzie, 23 Melburn street; Arthur Bolavert, 426 Moody street; Joseph Boulanger, 209 Howard street; Charles Germain, 493 Moody street; John B. Logan, 11 Raymond place; William J. Hunt, 3 Fourth street; Steven G. Wolton, 97 Homestead avenue; James E. Gregoire, 6 Varney street; William L. Kivlan, 47 Highland avenue; Joseph N. Robarge, 115 Tucker street; Joseph H. Lynch, 113 Adams street.

CITY WATER RATES

Increase in Departmental Revenues For First Six Months Due to Water Rates

The increase in city water rates is accountable for the increase in departmental revenues for the first six months of this year, about $14,000 in excess of receipts for a similar period of time in 1919. The figures are: 1920, $261,707.73; 1919, $247,392.73. It is practically assured that the department will sell enough water this year to balance the total expenditures. The excess for August 31 of the current year is $14,055.73, being the total overdraw of January 12, 1920 and this will be met by the increased rates, the city auditor believes.

LIST OF TEACHERS

The list of teachers at the North Chelmsford schools which will reopen for the fall term next Tuesday as announced by the school committee is as follows:

Princeton Street school—Gertrude M. Jones, principal, grade 8; Ella A. Hutchinson, grade 7; Lilla B. MacPherson, grade 6; May D. Sleeper, grade 5; Alice M. Flynn, grade 4; Genevieve E. Jansen, grade 3; Katharine Howard, grade 2; Catherine E. McDermott, grade 1.
Highland Avenue school—Laura B. Desmarais, principal, grades 7 and 8; Berangere M. Roy, grades 5 and 6; Marie T. Heath, grades 3 and 4; Marguerite McGinness, grades 1 and 2.
West school—Bertha H. Long, principal, grammar room; Ruth A. Whittemore, intermediate room; Mary C. Coffey, primary room.

LEONCE COGNAC INJURED
Leonce Cognac, of Avon street, employed by the Emery Cognac estate is confined to his home suffering from a fracture of the nose and numerous abrasions in the face as a result of an accident, which occurred Thursday in his garage at his home. Mr. Cognac was cranking his automobile when suddenly the engine back fired the crank striking him in the face. He received treatment at a local hospital and later was taken to his home.

THE M. ELLIOTT, real estate and insurance, offices 64 Central street, corner Prescott, reports the following sales negotiated during the past week:

On behalf of Rufus W. Plummer and Margaret R. Plummer of Weymouth, Mass., formerly of this city, conveyance has been made of a small residential property at 33 Norcross street. The house is in cottage type with eight rooms and bath. The land involved in the transfer totals 4107 square feet. The grantees are Edward E. Sargent and Ella M. Sargent. Mr. and Mrs. Sargent are already in occupancy of the premises.

In connection with the above transaction, conveyance has been made of the adjoining lot. The land has a street frontage of 50 feet and an area of 4119 square feet. The sale is made on behalf of R. W. Plummer.

On behalf of Mrs. Bridget C. Carmody conveyance has been made of a small property at 32 Madison street near its junction with Thorndike. The house is in cottage style and has seven rooms. The land conveyed in the transaction totals 1958 square feet. The grantees are Joseph Silva, who purchases for personal occupancy.

Final papers have been passed in the transfer of an excellent building site situated on the westerly side of Bridge street in Dracut Centre. The lot has an area of one-half acre, is level and excellently adapted to building purposes. The transfer is negotiated on behalf of Mrs. Ella Hill, the purchaser being Mrs. Minnie Tyler.

Also final papers have been sent to record in the sale of another parcel of similar character and also located on Bridge street in Dracut Centre. The land involved in the transaction totals 24,000 square feet and is of the highest grade of garden soil. The sale is effected on behalf of Mrs. Lillie McKay of this city, the grantee being Mrs. Minnie Tyler. Mrs. Tyler will erect a modern home for her occupancy on the premises.

The sale of a six-apartment block property at 2-14 North Franklin street. The apartments have five rooms each and have separate entrances. The land involved in the transfer has an area of 5735 square feet and is assessed at the rate of 30c per foot. The sale is effected on behalf of Robert H. Elliott, the grantee being Rufus W. Plummer. Mr. Plummer purchases for purposes of investment.

On behalf of John Desmond of North Billerica conveyance has been made of a suburban property situated on Walnut street, North Billerica. The house is in semi-bungalow type and occupies land to the amount of 10,000 square feet. The grantee is John H. Randall, who purchases for personal occupancy.

On behalf of George L. Van Arman of Chester, N. H., conveyance has been negotiated of an attractive small residential parcel at 33 Walnut street. The house is in cottage style and has eight rooms. The land involved in the transfer totals 2337 square feet. The grantees are Bernard A. Connor and Mary E. Connor, buying for personal occupancy.

Sale by E. F. Slattery, Jr., Strand building, reports the following sales made through his office during the past week:

The sale of the investment property situated at 533-537 Broadway. The property consists of a five-tenement dwelling building with store, and about 4500 square feet of land. The assessed valuation totals $4350. The grantor is Samuel Silverblatt and the grantee is Asaph G. Nathaniel.

Final papers have been passed in the sale of the property situated at 116 Epping street, Weymouth. The house is of cottage type and contains seven rooms. About 4500 square feet of land is contained in the deed. The sale was made for Ernest F. Bjorkman of South-bend, Ind., while the purchaser is John P. Nutter of this city.

Also the sale of the property situated at 31 Morey street, Highlands. The house which is of recent construction, contains seven rooms and is equipped with all modern conveniences. The area of the land totals 4300 square feet. The parcel was sold for A. Estelle Rundlett, to a local business man.

Final papers have been recorded in the sale of the large investment property situated at 3-17 Pleasant street, corner of Andover. The estate consists of a 12-tenement block and store, together with 5500 square feet of land. The total assessment on the property is $15,400. Grace B. Donovan conveys title to Jacob, Henry J. and Norval H. March.

LEGAL NOTICES

LEGAL NOTICES

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully I, Charles J. Chandler, now of Concord, N. H., and formerly of this County, do hereby certify that I am the husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Concord, N. H., and at North Billerica in said County of Middlesex; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations, but the said Della Giroux, being wholly regardless of the same, at said Chateaugay, on or about the twenty-seventh day of August, 1917, without just cause, fully and utterly deserted your libellant, which desertion has continued from that time to the date of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Della Giroux.

Dated this first day of May, A. D., 1920.

WILLIAM E. GIRONX

Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Middlesex, ss. Superior Court, Sept. 3, A. D., 1920.

Upon the foregoing libel, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of October next, by causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon, to be published in the Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the residence of the libellee as set out in the libel, that she may then and there show cause, if any she have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

WM. C. DILLINGHAM, Clerk.

A true copy of the libel and of the order thereon.
